School Bus Bill Gains

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A constitutional amendment to permit use of public funds to transport private and parochial school students on public school buses was approved by a House committee early today.

The 5-1 vote of the constitutional amendments committee came after midnight. Rep. Charles Sheehan, D-House Springs, the chairman, declined to identify the lone dissenter.

When it reaches the floor it will be only the second time in 12 years that such a bill has been reported out of either a House or Senate committee.

Also approved by the committee was a proposed constitutional change to exempt household goods from taxation, a perennial proposal.

Wednesday night a House committee considered a bill to bar employers and labor unions from discriminating against a person because of age. Advertising age requirements also would be barred.

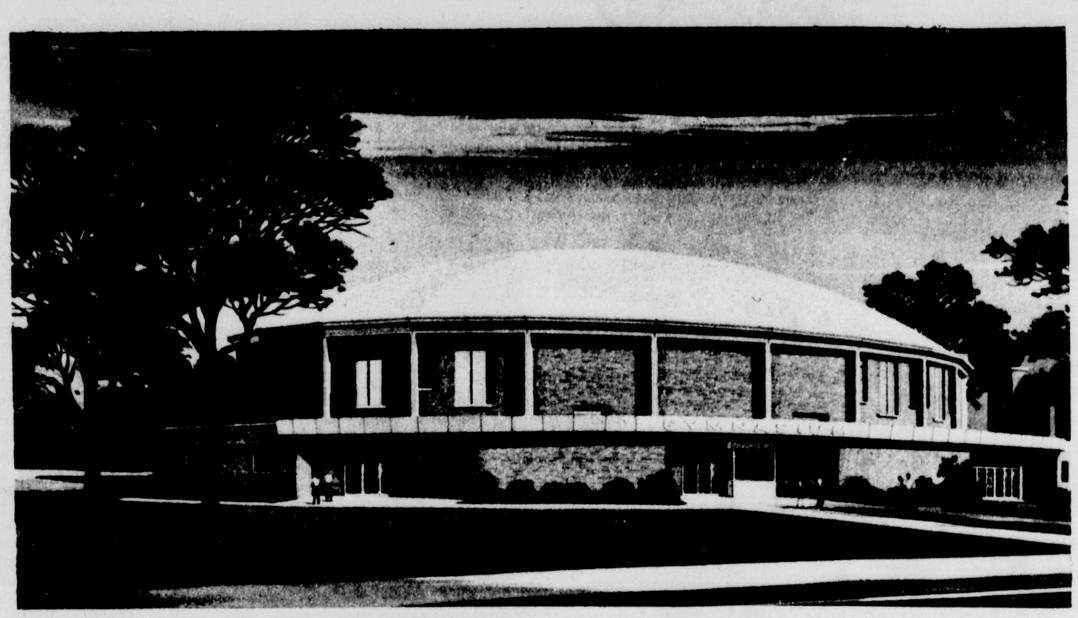

Another committee heard testimony to authorize a ½ to 1 per cent earnings tax for the city of Springfield. Both St. Louis and Kansas City have earnings taxes now.

The Springfield levy would produce an estimated $800,000 to help meet the city's overall budget of almost $9 million.

In a busy day Wednesday the House passed and sent to the Senate the so-called "shared time" bill to let handicapped parochial and private school pupils attend special courses in public schools.

The Senate passed and sent to the House a multi-state tax compact bill and another to modernize state banking laws for the first time in 50 years and put state banks on an equal footing with national banks.

Wednesday afternoon the Senate adjourned and went by chartered bus to Kirkwood to attend funeral services for Herbert A. Trask, St. Louis Post-Dispatch political correspondent who had covered the Senate for many years.

THIS IS AN ILLUSTRATION of how the field house at the high school would look. Construction is contingent on the passage of the $1,350,000 school bond issue to be voted on Tuesday by two thirds of those balloting.

Field House Would Seat 5,000 Persons

A field house will be one of the buildings, constructed if the $1,350,000 school bond issue passes next Tuesday. A two thirds majority of ballots is required.

Other additions to school buildings would be a new elementary school in the Miner area to replace airport school, enlargement of the high school library, a two-classroom addition to the mathematic-science building at the high school and nine classrooms and shops as vocational school additions.

The field house would contain about 40,000 square feet of floor space. The building will be 200 feet in diameter, have a removable basketball court and removable seats, which will leave the floor free for physical education activities, track and field meets, large community gatherings, exhibits or shows.

It would contain dressing rooms and storage facilities and seat more than 5,000.

By comparison the field house at Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau seats only 3,600.

The field house planned for Sikeston will have an asphalt floor and probably will have an indoor track of slightly less than 1/8 of a mile in circumference.

Legality of Powell Ban Likely to Be Tested

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has barred Adam Clayton Powell, its most controversial and flamboyant figure — but may have trouble making the ban stick.

While the Harlem preacher relaxed at his Bahamian fishing retreat at Bimini, his attorneys termed Wednesday's action of the House "unconstitutional." They raised the threat of a federal court suit to overturn it.

The House itself may have to deal with the matter again, perhaps within two months. A special election will be held to fill Powell's seat and there is every likelihood he again will be elected to fill the post he has held 22 years.

"It will come back to haunt the House," said Rep. Emanuel Celler, the venerable New York Democrat, after the House rejected 222 to 202 the recommendation of his select committee to seat the Negro Democrat with a stiff censure, a $40,000 assessment and the loss of all seniority.

The action also rejected leadership from both parties, who had backed the committee action, and led to the final ouster 307 to 116.

"If I were representing Adam Clayton Powell," Celler told reporters, "I'd take the case to court right away. I think he's got a good case."

And Rep. Arch A. Moore Jr., the West Virginia Republican who fought alongside Celler for adoption of the censure proposal, referred reporters to his statement midway through the five-hour debate: "If we turn him out, his constituency will turn him back with an even greater majority."

The galleries were packed but orderly. Although Powell, 58, was absent, his lawyers were there. They listened intently but left when the outcome became clear.

Later, they issued a terse statement through Powell's office which said: "Within a few days an announcement will be made by or on benalf of Mr. Powell as to any future course of action."

The House floor was hushed during most of the debate, although at one point the hum of conversation rose so much that presiding Rep. Hugh L. Carey, D-N.Y., reminded members: "Gentlemen, we're voting on a matter involving decorum in the House — there is no decorum in the House."

Civil rights leaders expressed anger at the House action. And in Powell's Harlem district, citizens were indignant and said they'd vote for Powell again if he runs in the special election.

Although his future was uncertain, the action meant that as of 6:55 p.m. Wednesday, Adam Clayton Powell ceased to be either a member or a member-elect of the 90th Congress. His $30,000 annual salary will stop and he will have to vacate his plush Rayburn Office Building suite, though he will get a few days to pack.

The action came just 51 days after Democrats voted to strip Powell of the Education and Labor Committee chairmanship he had held since 1961. The next day the House voted to keep him out, pending a report by a select committee to be established to investigate his qualifications.

Then Wednesday it rejected the unanimous recommendation of that committee, that Powell be seated but censured for "gross misconduct."

In a series of three votes, the House made Powell the third member-elect to be excluded from membership in the 20th century.

The only persons suffering similar fates since 1900 were Victor Berger, a Wisconsin Socialist convicted of sedition, and Brigham Roberts, a Utah Mormon who had been convicted of polygamy.

Members have received heavy mail from constituents urging that Powell be ousted, and public opinion polls have reported similar feeling. "The voice of the country and the emotion that was part of it finally prevailed," Moore commented.

The select committee tried to sell the censure proposal to the House as the stiffest practical penalty that could be applied without tangling with the courts. Moore called it "annihilation of a member of this House by total humiliation."

But Rep. Albert W. Watson, R-S.C., contending a resolution could not humiliate Powell, said: "As far as I know, he's down in Bimini with a glass in one hand and a woman in the other."

Powell was last reported fishing, accompanied by his secretary Corrine A. Huff. The censure resolution would have dropped her from her $19,000-a-year job on Powell's staff, but by ousting Powell, the House automatically dismissed his staff as well.

The key vote came on a move to shut off debate, block all amendments and bring the censure proposal to an immediate vote. This was rejected 222 to 202, with 113 Republicans and 109 Democrats joining to defeat 71 Republicans and 131 Democrats.

Then, by a vote of 248 to 176, the House substituted the proposal by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., to exclude Powell for the seat and censure plan proposed by the committee. Finally, it voted 307 to 116 in favor of the amended resolution and thus barred Powell.

Rep. Paul C. Jones, D-Mo., favored the resolution rejecting Powell.

Curtis, who said later he had been picked by Republican leaders to offer the exclusion motion, said he felt the facts revealed by the Celler committee "warrant his (Powell's) exclusion from this body, not to punish him but to maintain the dignity of this body."

The committee had accused Powell of converting to his own use more than $46,000 in government funds and of contemptuous behavior to the courts of New York -- in connection with a longstanding libel judgment -- and to the Celler committee itself.

St. Louis Driver Yields Counterfeit $20 Bills

More $20 counterfeit bills made their appearance in Southeast Missouri when the highway patrol and Madison county authorities, were alerted about a St. Louis man, who had purchased a package of cigarettes with a bogus bill.

The operator of the Derby Service Station, five miles south of Fredericktown on highway 67, called the patrol at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, following the purchase of cigarettes by a stranger, who gave a bogus bill in payment.

About 30 minutes later Trooper W. R. Wilcox, Piedmont, spotted a car about 30 miles north of Poplar Bluff. A second trooper, R. C. Caldwell, and Sheriff N. S. Whitener, both of Fredericktown, approached the car at the same time.

The driver, identified as Billy Banks, 35, of St. Louis, was searched, and 15 more $20 counterfeit bills were found. All the bills had the same serial number, D71813198B.

Banks is being held in the Fredericktown jail awaiting word from the Treasury department.

Counterfeit $20 bills have been passed in the Bootheel on numerous occasions in the past year and several arrests have been made.

Three Drivers Charged After Road Accidents

Three of four Sikeston area highway accidents yesterday resulted in summons issued to a driver by the state patrol for careless and reckless driving. Two mishaps were near Morehouse.

A 1957 Chevrolet, driven by William McDonald, 24, Morehouse, pulled out of a driveway, in front of a 1963 Pontiac, driven by Robert Goodwin, 22, Sikeston, Wednesday at 7:20 a.m. on highway 114 in Morehouse.

The Goodwin car swerved to miss the McDonald car, ran off the hghway and struck a utility pole. Neither driver was injured.

McDonald was issued a summons for careless and reckless driving.

Wednesday at 1:20 p.m. near the intersection of highway 60 and 114, near the west edge of Morehouse, a 1965 Ford, driven by Robert Utzman, 69, Booneville, Ind., attempted to pass a 1967 Pontiac, driven by Otha Schuerenberg, 42, Essex.

The Ford ran off the road shoulder, cut back on the highway, struck the Pontiac, and stopped over a drainage ditch railing.

The Indiana driver was given a summons for careless and reckless driving and driving on the wrong side of the highway.

Shots Flush Thieves

MOREHOUSE -- Two burglars were surprised early today by the owner of Haley's Town Pub when they attempted to take a case of whiskey.

"One of them may be sore today from buckshot," Lee Haley, owner of the tavern said.

Haley was awakened at 1:30 a.m. today by the burglars. He lives in a house next to the tavern.

The burglars broke the glass in the front door of the barber shop, which adjoins the pub, and a package liquor store.

"They took about $5 in silver from the barber shop," Haley said.

One of the men was carrying a case of whiskey when he was surprised by Haley, who was carrying a shotgun. He dropped the whiskey in haste to leave, Haley said.

Damage to the building and broken bottles of whiskey amounted to about $30.

Haley said the light was bad but he thought the men were Negroes and drove away in a rusty red 1957 or 58 Chevrolet.

Hearnes Feels Plan Agencies Meet Challenge

TRENTON, Mo. (AP)— Gov. Warren E. Hearnes told a group of Trenton business men at a luncheon today Missouri's governments are accepting the challenge to come up with a blueprint for the future.

He was referring to the dedication earlier of the Green Hills Regional Planning Commission, the third such agency in the state. He described it as a "new and pioneering concept."

"No nation, state, county or city can live in isolation — in self-sufficient splendor, he said. "The soaring sixties emphasized that."

Today, the move toward regional planning on the local level is a step in this direction, he said, leaving autonomy of decision in the hands of the local citizens.

Among some of the problems Hearnes envisioned as being tackled through regional planning were:

1. Development of programs for the physically and mentally handicapped.
2. Coordination of recreation, and expansion of public parks, forestry, and other space activities.
3. Providing for clean water and sewage disposal.
4. Expansion of technical and vocational training facilities.
5. Serving needs of the elderly persons through better housing and a more secure and pleasant future.

The profit made from the project will be used for the annual rodeo and other Jaycee projects.

Goldwater Expected To Dedicate Monument

CARUTHERSVILLE -- The 1964 GOP presidential candidate, former Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, is expected to dedicate a memorial to Missouri's first flying ace of World War II in the city park June 3.

Goldwater last month notified a civic leader that he would be available on any date in June for the dedication ceremony in honor of the late Col. John England, a native of Caruthersville. The June 3 date was selected in order that the air force's precision flying team would also be on hand.

Colonel England had an outstanding combat record during the war, but his most heroic action resulted in his death in 1954. He was on a routine training mission in Europe when his jet ran short of fuel as he approached his landing field in France. Rather than endanger men in his command in barracks below, Colonel England flew his jet to an unpopulated area where it crashed.

The flying ace took his first instruction from an air force officer by the name of Goldwater. He later renewed his

Shaw Has Clearance By Clark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen.-designate Ramsey Clark said today the Federal Bureau of Investigation already has investigated and cleared Clay L. Shaw — a businessman arrested in New Orleans — of any part in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Clark made the statement to newsmen moments after the Senate Judiciary Committee approved his nomination to become attorney general.

Shaw, wealthy retired director of the International Trade Mart, has been booked on a charge of "conspiracy to commit murder" in the Kennedy assassination investigation being run by New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison.

In a brief corridor interview, Clark said the Justice Department knows what Garrison's case involves, and does not consider it valid.

He said Shaw "was included in an investigation in November

Kosygin Favors Confab

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson said today he has gotten personal confirmation from Premier Alexei Kosygin that the Soviet Union is willing to begin discussions with the United States on possible ways to limit the spread of both offensive and defensive missiles.

Johnson, holding his second news conference in four days, said he had written Kosygin on Jan. 27 to propose that the two governments discuss a possible halt in the development of antiballistic defensive missiles.

He said he had received a reply from Kosygin that "confirms the willingness of the Soviet Government" to discuss possible ways to limit the arms race in both offensive and devensive weapons.

The President said talks will begin in Moscow, with Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson representing the United States.

He said he did not know what the course might be after that but emphasized that the United States will be discussing the matter throughout with its allies.

Johnson expressed hope the Moscow discussions would begin at the earliest possible time.

He was vague about when he received Kosygin's reply. He said he did not have that information at hand at the moment. The implication was that the Soviet premier had written him before today.

Perhaps by coincidence, Johnson held his impromptu news conference a few hours before Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., was to address the Senate on American policy in Vietnam. He said the United States has

Rolwing Opposes Motorboat Gas Tax Exemption

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - A constitutional amendment proposed by Rep. David Rolwing, D- Charleston, would remove tax exemption on gasoline for boats and ear-mark a portion of the taxes collected for development of boating and recreational facilities.

The proposal was discussed at a House committee meeting Wednesday night.

Under Missouri law operators of vehicles not using public highways may obtain refunds on state gasoline taxes.

Rolwing contends the construction of boat facilities should be paid for by those who use them.

Dan Drake, representing the Lake of the Ozarks Yachting Association said:

"The people who want these facilities are not the bulk of the gas users. They are picknickers, swimmers and freeloaders."

Robert Carrol, executive secretary of the Missouri Good Roads Association, said the state should not divert money away from badly needed highway projects.

Then, by a vote of 248 to 176, the House substituted the proposal by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., to exclude Powell for the seat and censure plan proposed by the committee. Finally, it voted 307 to 116 in favor of the amended resolution and thus barred Powell.

Rep. Paul C. Jones, D-Mo., favored the resolution rejecting Powell.

Curtis, who said later he had been picked by Republican leaders to offer the exclusion motion, said he felt the facts revealed by the Celler committee "warrant his (Powell's) exclusion from this body, not to punish him but to maintain the dignity of this body."

The committee had accused Powell of converting to his own use more than $46,000 in government funds and of contemptuous behavior to the courts of New York -- in connection with a longstanding libel judgment — and to the Celler committee itself.

St. Louis Driver Yields Counterfeit $20 Bills

More $20 counterfeit bills made their appearance in Southeast Missouri when the highway patrol and Madison county authorities, were alerted about a St. Louis man, who had purchased a package of cigarettes with a bogus bill.

The operator of the Derby Service Station, five miles south of Fredericktown on highway 67, called the patrol at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, following the purchase of cigarettes by a stranger, who gave a bogus bill in payment.

About 30 minutes later Trooper W. R. Wilcox, Piedmont, spotted a car about 30 miles north of Poplar Bluff. A second trooper, R. C. Caldwell, and Sheriff N. S. Whitener, both of Fredericktown, approached the car at the same time.

The driver, identified as Billy Banks, 35, of St. Louis, was searched, and 15 more $20 counterfeit bills were found. All the bills had the same serial number, D71813198B.

Banks is being held in the Fredericktown jail awaiting word from the Treasury department.

Counterfeit $20 bills have been passed in the Bootheel on numerous occasions in the past year and several arrests have been made.

Three Drivers Charged After Road Accidents

Three of four Sikeston area highway accidents yesterday resulted in summons issued to a driver by the state patrol for careless and reckless driving. Two mishaps were near Morehouse.

A 1957 Chevrolet, driven by William McDonald, 24, Morehouse, pulled out of a driveway, in front of a 1963 Pontiac, driven by Robert Goodwin, 22, Sikeston, Wednesday at 7:20 a.m. on highway 114 in Morehouse.

The Goodwin car swerved to miss the McDonald car, ran off the highway and struck a utility pole. Neither driver was injured.

McDonald was issued a summons for careless and reckless driving.

Wednesday at 1:20 p.m. near the intersection of highway 60 and 114, near the west edge of Morehouse, a 1965 Ford, driven by Robert Utzman, 69, Booneville, Ind., attempted to pass a 1967 Pontiac, driven by Otha Schuerenberg, 42, Essex.

The Ford ran off the road shoulder, cut back on the highway, struck the Pontiac, and stopped over a drainage ditch railing.

The Indiana driver was given a summons for careless and reckless driving and driving on the wrong side of the highway.

Shots Flush Thieves

MOREHOUSE -- Two burglars were surprised early today by the owner of Haley's Town Pub when they attempted to take a case of whiskey.

"One of them may be sore today from buckshot," Lee Haley, owner of the tavern said.

Haley was awakened at 1:30 a.m. today by the burglars. He lives in a house next to the tavern.

The burglars broke the glass in the front door of the barber shop, which adjoins the pub, and a package liquor store.

"They took about $5 in silver from the barber shop," Haley said.

One of the men was carrying a case of whiskey when he was surprised by Haley, who was carrying a shotgun. He dropped the whiskey in haste to leave, Haley said.

Damage to the building and broken bottles of whiskey amounted to about $30.

Haley said the light was bad but he thought the men were Negroes and drove away in a rusty red 1957 or 58 Chevrolet.

Hearnes Feels Plan Agencies Meet Challenge

TRENTON, Mo. (AP)— Gov. Warren E. Hearnes told a group of Trenton business men at a luncheon today Missouri's governments are accepting the challenge to come up with a blueprint for the future.

He was referring to the dedication earlier of the Green Hills Regional Planning Commission, the third such agency in the state. He described it as a "new and pioneering concept."

"No nation, state, county or city can live in isolation — in self-sufficient splendor, he said. "The soaring sixties emphasized that."

Today, the move toward regional planning on the local level is a step in this direction, he said, leaving autonomy of decision in the hands of the local citizens.

Among some of the problems Hearnes envisioned as being tackled through regional planning were:

1. Development of programs for the physically and mentally handicapped.

2. Coordination of recreation, and expansion of public parks, forestry, and other space activities.

3. Providing for clean water and sewage disposal.

4. Expansion of technical and vocational training facilities.

5. Serving needs of the elderly persons through better housing and a more secure and pleasant future.

The profit made from the project will be used for the annual rodeo and other Jaycee projects.

Cape Man Joins Regent Board

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - Gov. Warren E. Hearnes today appointed C. A. Juden Sr., Cape Girardeau Democrat, as a member of the board of regents of Southeast Missouri State College.

He succeeds Fred A. Goves, also of Cape Girardeau whose term expired.

Goldwater Expected To Dedicate Monument

CARUTHERSVILLE -- The 1964 GOP presidential candidate, former Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, is expected to dedicate a memorial to Missouri's first flying ace of World War II in the city park June 3.

Goldwater last month notified a civic leader that he would be available on any date in June for the dedication ceremony in honor of the late Col. John England, a native of Caruthersville. The June 3 date was selected in order that the air force's precision flying team would also be on hand.

Colonel England had an outstanding combat record during the war, but his most heroic action resulted in his death in 1954. He was on a routine training mission in Europe when his jet ran short of fuel as he approached his landing field in France. Rather than endanger men in his command in barracks below, Colonel England flew his jet to an unpopulated area where it crashed.

The flying ace took his first instruction from an air force officer by the name of Goldwater. He later renewed his

Shaw Has Clearance By Clark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen.-designate Ramsey Clark said today the Federal Bureau of Investigation already has investigated and cleared Clay L. Shaw — a businessman arrested in New Orleans — of any part in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Clark made the statement to newsmen moments after the Senate Judiciary Committee approved his nomination to become attorney general.

Shaw, wealthy retired director of the International Trade Mart, has been booked on a charge of "conspiracy to commit murder" in the Kennedy assassination investigation being run by New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison.

In a brief corridor interview, Clark said the Justice Department knows what Garrison's case involves, and does not consider it valid.

He said Shaw "was included in an investigation in November

Kosygin Favors Confab

WASHINGTON AP -- President Johnson said today he has gotten personal confirmation from Premier Alexei Kosygin that the Soviet Union is willing to begin discussions with the United States on possible ways to limit the spread of both offensive and defensive missiles.

Johnson, holding his second news conference in four days, said he had written Kosygin on Jan. 27 to propose that the two governments discuss a possible halt in the development of antiballistic defensive missiles.

He said he had received a reply from Kosygin that "confirms the willingness of the Soviet Government" to discuss possible ways to limit the arms race in both offensive and devensive weapons.

The President said talks will begin in Moscow, with Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson representing the United States.

He said he did not know what the course might be after that but emphasized that the United States will be discussing the matter throughout with its allies.

Johnson expressed hope the Moscow discussions would begin at the earliest possible time.

He was vague about when he received Kosygin's reply. He said he did not have that information at hand at the moment. The implication was that the Soviet premier had written him before today.

Perhaps by coincidence, Johnson held his impromptu news conference a few hours before Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., was to address the Senate on American policy in Vietnam. He said the United States has

Rolwing Opposes Motorboat Gas Tax Exemption

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) - A constitutional amendment proposed by Rep. David Rolwing, D- Charleston, would remove tax exemption on gasoline for boats and ear-mark a portion of the taxes collected for development of boating and recreational facilities.

The proposal was discussed at a House committee meeting Wednesday night.

Under Missouri law operators of vehicles not using public highways may obtain refunds on state gasoline taxes.

Rolwing contends the construction of boat facilities should be paid for by those who use them.

Dan Drake, representing the Lake of the Ozarks Yachting Association said:

"The people who want these facilities are not the bulk of the gas users. They are picknickers, swimmers and freeloaders."

Robert Carrol, executive secretary of the Missouri Good Roads Association, said the state should not divert money away from badly needed highway projects.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Roy Roberts left the American people a legacy: Get the facts! After you get them weigh them. Then go into action to make life better than it was before.

Basically the retired board chairman of the great Kansas City Star was a reporter but he did more than gather facts. Often he acted on the information he obtained. He became a confidante of Presidents.

Born in a Kansas village he rose from a newspaper carrier to the top administrative position on the Star. He fought his way to the top. Two years ago he retired. Last week he died at the age of 79.

His interests were those which affected his readers - politics, economics and international relations.

When he went out into the street, private clubs, even the White House, he came back with his pockets full of notes for stories.

In 1948 when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was being courted as a possible presidential candidate by both parties, nobody knew his political beliefs.

Roberts rushed off to visit the general, closeted himself with him until 5 a.m. and returned home to write that Ike was "a good Kansas Republican."

From that beginning came Eisenhower's nomination and election in 1952 - the only such triumph scored by Roberts during his life. The Missouri newspaperman was one of the insiders who helped four men become presidential candidates. The other three were former Kansas governors. Alfred M. Landon, Wendell L. Willkie and Thomas E. Dewey.

Under Roberts the Star became a crusader for good government and civic improvement. The newspaper achieved its greatest success in breaking up the Democratic machine of the late Tom Pendergast. In this fight the Star notoriously exposed vote frauds and eventually helped defeat Pendergast's machine at the polls.

Roberts was a good reporter and because of his inquisitive talents became a well informed citizen, who did more than his share to make democracy work.

His life was one intelligent man's answer to the challenge facing all people to inform themselves and act.

His example will be a monument that will endure.

THE NAVY CELEBRATES

A Navy is more than ships and men, as two anniversaries this month remind us. The Navy's Civil Engineer Corps was established just 100 years ago, on March 2, 1867. These are the men who build the Navy's shore facilities.

Only 25 years ago, on March 5, 1942, the Navy's first Construction Battalion was formed. The Seabees, as they are better known, are both construction men and fighting men. Their extra curricular activities are wide ranging.

One Seabee outfit in Viet Nam in a typical month 1) administered 469 medical and dental treatments, 2) assisted in the completion of three village latrines, 3) distributed 2,000 bars of soap and two cases of powered detergent, 4) distributed candy to 180 school children, 5) distributed 165 family packets of blankets, clothing, sewing kits, and soap, 6) donated 4,500 piasters for local teachers' salaries, 7) delivered garbage to feed orphanage pigs, and 8) collected and delivered scrap lumber and assisted in various other village projects.

Each of the Seabee units in Viet Nam has adopted at least one orphanage. These are being overhauled, rebuilt, and modernized by gruff Seabees in return for orphans' smiles.

EXPERIMENTAL CITIES

One of the earliest brainchildren of the New Deal was the concept of greenbelt towns - garden suburbs, protected by encircling belts of farm and woodland, easily accessible to cities, but with the space and tranquillity of the countryside. After the satellite towns were built, Rexford Tugwell proposed in 1935, the government would "go back into the cities and tear down whole sums and make parks of them."

Only three "green towns" were built - Greenbelt near Washington, D. C., Greenhills near Concinnati, and Greendale near Milwaukee. Now, three decades later, a more ambitious version of the greenbelt town concept is attracting attention. Dr. Athelstan Spilhaus of the University of Minnesota has urged construction of numerous experimental cities, each with a population of about 250,000. Federal grants totaling $248,000, to be used in planning the first such city - probably to be located in Minnesota, are expected to be approved by Wednesday, March 1.

Spilhaus' proposal rests on the assumption that the country's existing cities are ill equipped to absorb many more residents. By contrast, a city built from scratch presumably would be able to employ the latest techniques in waste and pollution control and to provide up-to-date schools, hospitals and transportation. Writing in the Los Angeles Times, Feb. 5, Spilhaus pointed out that "The experimental city, even after it is built and populated, will serve as a continuing sociological and technological laboratory for urban design from which successful ideas may be drawn to improve older cities."

Urban dispersal, not urban renewal, is the answer to city problems, Spilhaus feels. He is not daunted by the immensity of the task of building an entirely new city, let alone several. "People seem to be resistant to small change," Spilhaus writes, "but their imagination is fired by exciting exploration and invention."

A House committee exercised just the right blend of common sense pronouncing judgment on Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Harlem's idea of what a congressman ought to be.

It would have been a mistake either to have denied him a seat in Congress or to have ousted him after he had taken his seat. This would have been an affront to the democratic process, ineffective and disastrous to the national interest.

Representatives in Congress are chosen by the people at two-year intervals to give the public a maximum voice in legislation. If Harlem wants Powell as it has repeatedly demonstrated that it does, the rest of the country should not deny it the representation that it wants, however, objectionable it may be to the rest of the country.

Removal of Powell or even the serious attempt to do so would have been a threat to every Congressman and to the process by which all are elected and serve.

It also would have had the effect of making a martyr out of Powell at a time when his prestige and influence have been declining steadily.

This would have been unfortunate for the national welfare.

Seating Powell, censuring him, assessing a $40,000 penalty on a withholding basis and cutting away his seniority has reduced the clown to size.

It has almost put him in class with the citizens he represents so unfaithfully.

That is where he belongs.

The committee's disciplinary proposal represents the best work accomplished by Congress in a quarter of a century.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, New York Democrat, and his nine-member committee deserve the thanks of all Americans for representing them so faithfully and effectively in dealing with an arrogant and insolent Congressman, who has made a mockery of the legislative process and squandered the public's money with hanky panky abandon.

The committee has done its work well.

It is unlikely that Powell ever will rise to his former position of power and influence even though Congress fails to accept its recommendation and regardless of what the United States supreme court subsequently may do to derail it.

LET'S RETURN TO CIVILIZATION

California, once considered a leader in education, is slipping. It is about to move definitely backward. The state's legislators, who determine public school curricula, are set apparently on producing ticky-tacky people instead of responsive adults.

As the result of a relatively obscure bill passed several years ago, there will be virtually no room in grades six, seven and eight for the humanities and arts - the civilizing subjects. Effective July 1, 1965, all six regular schoolday periods were filled with mandatory subjects, the latest being foreign language.

Most clear-thinking Americans are opposed to total regimentation in education, or in any other endeavor. It constricts mental development, stifles creativity and dehumanizes people. The result is our high levels of waywardness among youth, moral decay, alcoholism and divorce. We must learn what life can offer us - not just how to make a living and to survive.

Let's not deny our children the opportunities to discover and participate in those activities that are the reasons for existing. Let's make sure they know more than merely how to make a buck and build a rocket.

WRONG--BY $29.9 BILLION

The official prediction that the federal deficit for the next fiscal year will be only $1.8 billion, because of a big anticipated increase in tax revenues, is supposed to provide the country with a feeling of confidence. But a great many knowledgable people have greeted that forecast with raised eyebrows, and with good reason.

Here is a little lesson from recent history: Over an 11 year period, the total predicted budget deficits came to $13.2 billion. But the actual deficits came to $43.1 billion. So the predictors were off by the startling figure of $29.9 billion.

The point of this has been summed up by Representative Mahon, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. As he points out, all original budgets are tentative at best, and this one is more tentative than most because of Viet Nam; all original budgets turn out differently; and, in general, the difference lies on the negative side.

Unfortunately, in government budgets as in so many other phases of life a prediction is one thing -- and the actuality is another.

REPEALING HUMAN NATURE

Right now, the United States is busily engaged in the creation of the most gigantic structure of public welfare that the world has ever seen. The resources which we have at hand to turn over to government for distribution to groups of citizens entitled to benefits under ever-broadening welfare legislation are immense. Of course, all this wealth was created under a different philosophy which put a premium on individual initiative and provided the incentive of rewarding the productive people and enterprises.

The history of this country should have demonstrated one fact: That all men simply are not equal, never were and never will be. An editorial in the Colorado Trumpet and the Public Ledger points out that: "The Declaration of Independence asserts that all men are created equal, but it says nothing about the duty of a government to maintain citizens at an equal level thereafter." A good example of welfare state "equality" is provided by the following: "Two families living side-by-side are a dramatic example of government favoritism. The one with an income of $3,100 a year is entitled to special tutors and medical checkups for their four-to-six year-old children, summer jobs or free summer seminars on college campuses for their high school kids, and Youth Corps benefits for the school dropouts. They reap numerous other special privileges as well, but the family next door with an income of $3,300 a year gets nothing."

As taxes go up and dollars go down in value, it becomes more and more apparent that the superwelfare state may bankrupt us, but it cannot ever make us equal - except perhaps in the sharing of universal national poverty.

'You Suppose We're a Bit Hasty?'

H.L. Hunt Says

GOVERNMENT PAPER BLIZZARD

The passion of bureaucrats for paper is well known. But few Americans realize the enormous cost of that undying passion in our vast federal bureaucracy today. That cost has now reached no less than $8 billion a year, all paid by your tax money.

It costs the average American family $200 in taxes each year to pay for this paperwork. The federal government uses 360,000 different forms and swallows up 15,000,000 copies of them every year.

The task of simply filing this blizzard of paper staggers the inmagination. Nearly a quarter of a million civil servants spend almost all of their working hours filing government documents. In the federal executive offices alone there are more than 2,000,000 filing cabinets, all stuffed with paper.

Out of the bureaucrats' offices each year stream one billion letters, most of them long and involved and almost impossible for the ordinary American, to whom most of them are sent, to understand. The cost of these one billion letters is $1.5 billion. A House sub-committee has estimated that more than $200,000,000 of this total could be saved annually if only the bureaucrats would write shorter and simpler letters. But this would be almost too much to expect.

Computers, widely heralded as a solution to this kind of problem, will only make it worse by multiplying the capacity of bureaucrats and filing systems to handle records. The total: 2,600 miles high. Most bureaucrats produce nothing but more of their own kind. HLH.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that career girls get tired of hearing:

"After all, she's wedded to her work."

"If you ask me, a woman's place still is in the home."

"What's a nice dame like you doing working in a sweatshop like this?"

"To be as tactful as possible about it, Joan, I don't think that dress is for you. In a job like yours, you don't want to look too young."

"Congratulations, Joan. As the first girl in this firm ever to win her 25-year pin, you have every right to be proud of yourself."

"Sorry Miss, but we don't serve unescorted ladies at the bar. Would you care to sit at a table?"

"Let's all go dutch."

"Yes, I admit you deserve the promotion, but you know how some of the men feel. They don't want to work for a woman."

"Don't tell me you can cook, too? I thought all career girls were helpless in the kitchen."

"We're giving a shower for Rosemary. She's getting married to the head of her department next month."

"I do believe it's your first gray hair, Miss. Shall I tint it or pluck it for you as a souvenir?"

"I don't care whether she can type or not — she's still not my type."

"...And, of course, after you've been with us for 40 years, you're entitled to the full pension."

"I love my wife, but oh, you kid!"

"I'll handle this problem myself, Joan. I feel it needs a man's touch."

"For Pete's sake, why should a career gal expect to get the same pay as a man? He's got a family to support. All she usually has to support is a pet cat or a couple of goldfish."

"They ape everything we do. The next thing you know they'll start carrying brief cases to and from the office."

"Hey, Joan. It's my wife's birthday. Would you mind trotting out and buying a couple dozen roses for her? While you're at it, pick one out for yourself. I'll pay for it."

"They're all just marking time until they can catch themselves a husband."

"Gee, Joan, sometimes I forget you're a gal. I guess I tend to think of you as just another one of the fellows."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Investigating security risks is a favorite sport on Capitol Hill, where the spotlight is constantly seeking out supposed subversives who look as if they might be a threat to the nation. But while congress has spent millions exposing Communists and non - conformists, it has carefully protected its own security risks.

Take the case of House Armed Services Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S. C., who is briefed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Central Intelligence Agency on their most secret operations. Yet alcoholism has made him the nation's no. 1 security risk who, in any branch of government except congress, would be barred from secret information.

He is no less a security risk because he can't help his unfortunate sickness. Witnesses have told us of finding the safe wide open and empty liquor bottles strewn around his office in the mornings. He has also returned from alcoholic escapades without the haziest memory of whom he may have shared confidences with.

The house has been fully aware of River's security proolem since he took over the chairmanship of the sensitive submarines subcommittee during World War II. The more responsibility he has assumed, the worse his drinking seems to have become -- though he has managed to stay on the wagon for intermittent periods.

We reported last year, for example, that he missed five meetings of the Armed Services Committee, holding up a vital $18 million military authorization bill, because he was drying out at the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

The house, instead of quietly suspending him from his chairmanship and barring him from access to classified information, gave him a standing ovation upon his return. His colleagues, led by no less than Speaker John McCormack, outdid each other in singing the praises of the silver-crested congressman from Charleston.

The Speaker claims to be second to none in his zeal to protect America from security risks. Yet he said of the nation's no. 1 security risk: "He has been a bulwark of strength in the national interest."

McCormack boasted he and Rivers were so close that they had formed their own exclusive, two - man political party, which the Speaker said was known as the McCormack - Crat party.

TRUSTED WITH DEFENSE SECRETS

House Majority Leader Carl Albert, D-Okla., chimed in that Rivers had handled the armed services post "with honor, with distinction, with ability, and with courage and education."

The Republicans loudly joined the chorus. House GOP Leader Gerald Ford, declaring that Rivers is "deeply concerned and interested in our national security," added: "He has demonstrated that he is knowledgeable in the intricate and complicated area of national defense policy."

It is precisely this knowledge of national defense policy, of course, that makes Rivers a security risk.

"How wonderful it is to follow the leadership with the top-secret posture briefings at the side of this white - maned man from South Carolina who stands so tall among his colleagues," declared Rep. Durward Hall, R-Mo. He also shares with Rivers an admiration for the John Birch Society, both having lavishly praised the far-right group.

"(Rivers) can spell out in detail," agreed Rep. William Bates, R-Mass., "the master plan of our bases in the most remote parts of the world."

Added Rep. Les Arends, R-Ill.: "During my many years' service on the (Armed Services) Committee, I do not recall giving as detailed and as thorough examination into our defense posture and plans and needs as has been undertaken these past few months . . . All this we owe to the quality leadership provided our committee by the gentleman from South Carolina."

Rivers apparently is privy not only to defense and CIA secrets but to atomic energy secrets as well. Revealed Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee: "We have tried to correlate our information with the defense committee in such a way that we can work together toward achieving the best interests of the nation."

No one tried to deny that Rivers is an alcoholic, which is common knowledge in the house. His colleagues merely expressed indignation that it should be advertised to the world.

"Regretably negative things have been printed today about (Rivers) and about his health," said Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., "no one can be blamed for illness, and in my long association with him, I have never seen any other defect in him whatsoever."

"An act which cries out for justice has been perpetrated against one of my colleagues whom I respect and admire, whom I consider a friend and a trusted member of this house," declared Rep. Eligio De LaGarza, D-Tex. "He may have faults, but it is not for me to judge. All I know is that he is a friend."

Echoed Rep. F. Edward Hebert: "(Rivers) is just as much a human being as anybody in this house, with all the faults and frailties and all the sterling qualities, whatever you want to call them, which we all, at some degree, may possess. This is what makes him the real man that he is and the real leader that he has demonstrated himself to be."

The tributes were summed up, in a sense, by Rivers's colleague, Rep. Albert Watson, R-S.C.: "While perhaps some might try to make derogatory remarks about you, we of South Carolina are proud of your dedication to duty and your knowledge of the facts, that is probably equaled by no other man."

Indeed, if it weren't for Rivers's dangerous knowledge of secret facts, he wouldn't be a security risk.

How CIA Rescued Friendly Foreign Unions From Terror, Bombings and Capture

Washington, D.C.: --It is time that those of us who have been amongst the bursting plastic bombs, the gunfire and sabotage aimed at killing off burgeoning democratic regimes speak up loud and clear during this Central Intelligence Agency uproar.

This debate should not go by default to those who use as a podium the many universities peopled by so many students who have gone from the cradle to the gravy.

Certainly there are labor leaders who permitted their unions to be used as fronts. But why? And where?

There is the State, County and Municipal Employes Union which from 1958 to 1964 came to the rescue of a labor movement in British Guiana -- a movement whose anti-Communist leaders were bombed, shot at, harassed and who were finally forced, after some 200 deaths amongst their followers, to arm themselves.

The pro-Castro, pro-Stalin, pro-Maoist opposition was always well financed -- and well trained. In the below sea level nation now Guyana, dikes were bombed. So were the telephone exchange, vital irrigation viaducts and critical drainage systems from which a pestilence could have arisen to wipe out tens of thousands.

Defending the democratic faith was -- and is -- the slim, taut, fortyish Richard Ishmael, high school teacher and labor leader.

His car was shot at. He and his family were hounded. Why?

Because he led the strategic non-Communist agriculture and electrical workers union called the Man-Power Citizens Assn. After serving two terms as leader of the British Guiana Trades Union Council, he was named "adviser" because he could not succeed himself and his people loved him.

Ishmael carried a .38 revolver. He trained one of his own family to shoot to kill so she could defend herself. When we were together he changed to a derringer so it would not be high noon all the time.

The Maoist-Castro operatives tried to smash his union, seize its manpower and contracts and so take over the land, as big as England itself. But despite the guns and bombs and death threats Ishmael and his colleague, now Prime Minister Forbes Burnham, prevailed. We helped them. If CIA was in on it -- so what?

So was British intelligence. It was the entente against the Maoists network which loved to parade on May Day holding aloft pictures of the dreaded Josef Stalin.

But that little nation of 647,000 atop the South American continent was just one of the Castro-Maoist anchors. There was and is the Dominican Republic.

Central Intelligence went the foundation way there, too. I believe some unions were helped. Certainly, one of former president Juan Bosch's intimates was a conduit. Again, why not?

Let someone ask former Ambassador to Santo Domingo, John Bartlow Martin (as a good journalist he will remember), what the Castro-Maoist forces dished out.

I was there. These anti-U.S. operatives simply rented riots -- price fixed. The rioters were called "turbas." They were the action squads. They simply declared street warfare against all democratic forces and proceeded to destroy U.S. property and nervous systems.

The turbas were Castro-Maoist creations. They had a set wage scale for vandalism and blasts at Americans and democratic unions.

The turbas were paid $50 for burning an American flag. For $150, the Castro-Peking cells got a street riot. For $350, U.S. property was destroyed.

Some of the turba squads were hoods. Others were avowed Communist students in the university which had not been functioning for months because the young Communists on campus simply began shooting at their opponents in school elections. Still others were trained Communist cadres.

They burned Ambassador Martin's auto. They invaded his children's school with a stone-throwing mob bent on terrorizing the youngsters. The U.S. Embassy was raucously picketed.

During all this the democratic labor movement, operating in a small midtown building, attempted to follow its own free course. But always they were besieged by the political hoods.

Had the unions stood alone, they would have been crushed. President Bosch's special aide knew this. He knew about the funneling of CIA money.

Why should it not have been? Why should these unions have been crushed in the Castro-Maoist pincers?

These are but two little lands of a score in which the terror rode high. Terror even stalked the big Latin nations, especially in the newspaper field's unions there. In one such country, the journalists' union was dominated by a chap who had fought alongside Fidel Castro in the mountains.

Why should we not have fought back? There are many of us who have no drive for self-destruction.

CIA merely evened the score. What was wrong with that?

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Roy Roberts left the American people a legacy: Get the facts! After you get them weigh them. Then go into action to make life better than it was before.

Basically the retired board chairman of the great Kansas City Star was a reporter but he did more than gather facts. Often he acted on the information he obtained. He became a confidante of Presidents.

Born in a Kansas village he rose from a newspaper carrier to the top administrative position on the Star. He fought his way to the top. Two years ago he retired. Last week he died at the age of 79.

His interests were those which affected his readers - politics, economics and international relations.

When he went out into the street, private clubs, even the White House, he came back with his pockets full of notes for stories.

In 1948 when Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was being courted as a possible presidential candidate by both parties, nobody knew his political beliefs.

Roberts rushed off to visit the general, closeted himself with him until 5 a.m. and returned home to write that Ike was "a good Kansas Republican."

From that beginning came Eisenhower's nomination and election in 1952 - the only such triumph scored by Roberts during his life. The Missouri newspaperman was one of the insiders who helped four men become presidential candidates. The other three were former Kansas governors. Alfred M. Landon, Wendell L. Willkie and Thomas E. Dewey.

Under Roberts the Star became a crusader for good government and civic improvement. The newspaper achieved its greatest success in breaking up the Democratic machine of the late Tom Pendergast. In this fight the Star notoriously exposed vote frauds and eventually helped defeat Pendergast's machine at the polls.

Roberts was a good reporter and because of his inquisitive talents became a well informed citizen, who did more than his share to make democracy work.

His life was one intelligent man's answer to the challenge facing all people to inform themselves and act.

His example will be a monument that will endure.

THE NAVY CELEBRATES

A Navy is more than ships and men, as two anniversaries this month remind us. The Navy's Civil Engineer Corps was established just 100 years ago, on March 2, 1867. These are the men who build the Navy's shore facilities.

Only 25 years ago, on March 5, 1942, the Navy's first Construction Battalion was formed. The Seabees, as they are better known, are both construction men and fighting men. Their extra curricular activities are wide ranging.

One Seabee outfit in Viet Nam in a typical month 1) administered 469 medical and dental treatments, 2) assisted in the completion of three village latrines, 3) distributed 2,000 bars of soap and two cases of powered detergent, 4) distributed candy to 180 school children, 5) distributed 165 family packets of blankets, clothing, sewing kits, and soap, 6) donated 4,500 piasters for local teachers' salaries, 7) delivered garbage to feed orphanage pigs, and 8) collected and delivered scrap lumber and assisted in various other village projects.

Each of the Seabee units in Viet Nam has adopted at least one orphanage. These are being overhauled, rebuilt, and modernized by gruff Seabees in return for orphans' smiles.

EXPERIMENTAL CITIES

One of the earliest brainchildren of the New Deal was the concept of greenbelt towns - garden suburbs, protected by encircling belts of farm and woodland, easily accessible to cities, but with the space and tranquillity of the countryside. After the satellite towns were built, Rexford Tugwell proposed in 1935, the government would "go back into the cities and tear down whole sums and make parks of them."

Only three "green towns" were built - Greenbelt near Washington, D. C., Greenhills near Concinnati, and Greendale near Milwaukee. Now, three decades later, a more ambitious version of the greenbelt town concept is attracting attention. Dr. Athelstan Spilhaus of the University of Minnesota has urged construction of numerous experimental cities, each with a population of about 250,000. Federal grants totaling $248,000, to be used in planning the first such city - probably to be located in Minnesota, are expected to be approved by Wednesday, March 1.

Spilhaus' proposal rests on the assumption that the country's existing cities are ill equipped to absorb many more residents. By contrast, a city built from scratch presumably would be able to employ the latest techniques in waste and pollution control and to provide up-to-date schools, hospitals and transportation. Writing in the Los Angeles Times, Feb. 5, Spilhaus pointed out that "The experimental city, even after it is built and populated, will serve as a continuing sociological and technological laboratory for urban design from which successful ideas may be drawn to improve older cities."

Urban dispersal, not urban renewal, is the answer to city problems, Spilhaus feels. He is not daunted by the immensity of the task of building an entirely new city, let alone several. "People seem to be resistant to small change," Spilhaus writes, "but their imagination is fired by exciting exploration and invention."

A House committee exercised just the right blend of common sense pronouncing judgment on Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Harlem's idea of what a congressman ought to be.

It would have been a mistake either to have denied him a seat in Congress or to have ousted him after he had taken his seat. This would have been an affront to the democratic process, ineffective and disastrous to the national interest.

Representatives in Congress are chosen by the people at two-year intervals to give the public a maximum voice in legislation. If Harlem wants Powell as it has repeatedly demonstrated that it does, the rest of the country should not deny it the representation that it wants, however, objectionable it may be to the rest of the country.

Removal of Powell or even the serious attempt to do so would have been a threat to every Congressman and to the process by which all are elected and serve.

It also would have had the effect of making a martyr out of Powell at a time when his prestige and influence have been declining steadily.

This would have been unfortunate for the national welfare.

Seating Powell, censuring him, assessing a $40,000 penalty on a withholding basis and cutting away his seniority has reduced the clown to size.

It has almost put him in class with the citizens he represents so unfaithfully.

That is where he belongs.

The committee's disciplinary proposal represents the best work accomplished by Congress in a quarter of a century.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, New York Democrat, and his nine-member committee deserve the thanks of all Americans for representing them so faithfully and effectively in dealing with an arrogant and insolent Congressman, who has made a mockery of the legislative process and squandered the public's money with hanky panky abandon.

The committee has done its work well.

It is unlikely that Powell ever will rise to his former position of power and influence even though Congress fails to accept its recommendation and regardless of what the United States supreme court subsequently may do to derail it.

LET'S RETURN TO CIVILIZATION

California, once considered a leader in education, is slipping. It is about to move definitely backward. The state's legislators, who determine public school curricula, are set apparently on producing ticky-tacky people instead of responsive adults.

As the result of a relatively obscure bill passed several years ago, there will be virtually no room in grades six, seven and eight for the humanities and arts - the civilizing subjects. Effective July 1, 1965, all six regular schoolday periods were filled with mandatory subjects, the latest being foreign language.

Most clear-thinking Americans are opposed to total regimentation in education, or in any other endeavor. It constricts mental development, stifles creativity and dehumanizes people. The result is our high levels of waywardness among youth, moral decay, alcoholism and divorce. We must learn what life can offer us - not just how to make a living and to survive.

Let's not deny our children the opportunities to discover and participate in those activities that are the reasons for existing. Let's make sure they know more than merely how to make a buck and build a rocket.

WRONG--BY $29.9 BILLION

The official prediction that the federal deficit for the next fiscal year will be only $1.8 billion, because of a big anticipated increase in tax revenues, is supposed to provide the country with a feeling of confidence. But a great many knowledgable people have greeted that forecast with raised eyebrows, and with good reason.

Here is a little lesson from recent history: Over an 11 year period, the total predicted budget deficits came to $13.2 billion. But the actual deficits came to $43.1 billion. So the predictors were off by the startling figure of $29.9 billion.

The point of this has been summed up by Representative Mahon, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. As he points out, all original budgets are tentative at best, and this one is more tentative than most because of Viet Nam; all original budgets turn out differently; and, in general, the difference lies on the negative side.

Unfortunately, in government budgets as in so many other phases of life a prediction is one thing -- and the actuality is another.

REPEALING HUMAN NATURE

Right now, the United States is busily engaged in the creation of the most gigantic structure of public welfare that the world has ever seen. The resources which we have at hand to turn over to government for distribution to groups of citizens entitled to benefits under ever-broadening welfare legislation are immense. Of course, all this wealth was created under a different philosophy which put a premium on individual initiative and provided the incentive of rewarding the productive people and enterprises.

The history of this country should have demonstrated one fact: That all men simply are not equal, never were and never will be. An editorial in the Colorado Trumpet and the Public Ledger points out that: "The Declaration of Independence asserts that all men are created equal, but it says nothing about the duty of a government to maintain citizens at an equal level thereafter." A good example of welfare state "equality" is provided by the following: "Two families living side-by-side are a dramatic example of government favoritism. The one with an income of $3,100 a year is entitled to special tutors and medical checkups for their four-to-six year-old children, summer jobs or free summer seminars on college campuses for their high school kids, and Youth Corps benefits for the school dropouts. They reap numerous other special privileges as well, but the family next door with an income of $3,300 a year gets nothing."

As taxes go up and dollars go down in value, it becomes more and more apparent that the superwelfare state may bankrupt us, but it cannot ever make us equal - except perhaps in the sharing of universal national poverty.

GOVERNMENT PAPER BLIZZARD

The passion of bureaucrats for paper is well known. But few Americans realize the enormous cost of that undying passion in our vast federal bureaucracy today. That cost has now reached no less than $8 billion a year, all paid by your tax money.

It costs the average American family $200 in taxes each year to pay for this paperwork. The federal government uses 360,000 different forms and swallows up 15,-000,000 copies of them every year.

The task of simply filing this blizzard of paper staggers the inmagination. Nearly a quarter of a million civil servants spend almost all of their working hours filing government documents. In the federal executive offices alone there are more than 2,000,000 filing cabinets, all stuffed with paper.

Out of the bureaucrats' offices each year stream one billion letters, most of them long and involved and almost impossible for the ordinary American, to whom most of them are sent, to understand. The cost of these one billion letters is $1.5 billion. A House sub-committee has estimated that more than $200,000,000 of this total could be saved annually if only the bureaucrats would write shorter and simpler letters. But this would be almost too much to expect.

Computers, widely heralded as a solution to this kind of problem, will only make it worse by multiplying the capacity of bureaucrats and filing systems to handle records. The total: 2,600 miles high. Most bureaucrats produce nothing but more of their own kind. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Investigating security risks is a favorite sport on Capitol Hill, where the spotlight is constantly seeking out supposed subversives who look as if they might be a threat to the nation. But while congress has spent millions exposing Communists and non - conformists, it has carefully protected its own security risks.

Take the case of House Armed Services Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S. C., who is briefed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Central Intelligence Agency on their most secret operations. Yet alcoholism has made him the nation's no. 1 security risk who, in any branch of government except congress, would be barred from secret information.

He is no less a security risk because he can't help his unfortunate sickness. Witnesses have told us of finding the safe wide open and empty liquor bottles strewn around his office in the mornings. He has also returned from alcoholic escapades without the haziest memory of whom he may have shared confidences with.

The house has been fully aware of River's security proolem since he took over the chairmanship of the sensitive submarines subcommittee during World War II. The more responsibility he has assumed, the worse his drinking seems to have become -- though he has managed to stay on the wagon for intermittent periods.

We reported last year, for example, that he missed five meetings of the Armed Services Committee, holding up a vital $18 million military authorization bill, because he was drying out at the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

The house, instead of quietly suspending him from his chairmanship and barring him from access to classified information, gave him a standing ovation upon his return. His colleagues, led by no less than Speaker John McCormack, outdid each other in singing the praises of the silver-crested congressman from Charleston.

The Speaker claims to be second to none in his zeal to protect America from security risks. Yet he said of the nation's no. 1 security risk: "He has been a bulwark of strength in the national interest."

McCormack boasted he and Rivers were so close that they had formed their own exclusive, two - man political party, which the Speaker said was known as the McCormack - Crat party.

TRUSTED WITH DEFENSE SECRETS

House Majority Leader Carl Albert, D-Okla., chimed in that Rivers had handled the armed services post "with honor, with distinction, with ability, and with courage and education."

The Republicans loudly joined the chorus. House GOP Leader Gerald Ford, declaring that Rivers is "deeply concerned and interested in our national security," added: "He has demonstrated that he is knowledgeable in the intricate and complicated area of national defense policy."

It is precisely this knowledge of national defense policy, of course, that makes Rivers a security risk.

"How wonderful it is to follow the leadership with the top-secret posture briefings at the side of this white - maned man from South Carolina who stands so tall among his colleagues," declared Rep. Durward Hall, R-Mo. He also shares with Rivers an admiration for the John Birch Society, both having lavishly praised the far-right group.

"(Rivers) can spell out in detail," agreed Rep. William Bates, R-Mass., "the master plan of our bases in the most remote parts of the world."

Added Rep. All this we owe to the quality 'eadership provided our committee by the gentleman from South Carolina."

No one tried to deny that Rivers is an alcoholic, which is common knowledge in the house. His colleagues merely expressed indignation that it should be advertised to the world.

"Regretably negative things have been printed today about (Rivers) and about his health," said Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., "no one can be blamed for illness, and in my long association with him, I have never seen any other defect in him whatsoever."

"An act which cries out for justice has been perpetrated against one of my colleagues whom I respect and admire, whom I consider a friend and a trusted member of this house," declared Rep. Eligio De LaGarza, D-Tex. "He may have faults, but it is not for me to judge. All I know is that he is a friend."

Echoed Rep. F. Edward Hebert: "(Rivers) is just as much a human being as anybody in this house, with all the faults and frailties and all the sterling qualities, whatever you want to call them, which we all, at some degree, may possess. NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that career girls get tired of hearing:

"After all, she's wedded to her work."

"If you ask me, a woman's place still is in the home."

"What's a nice dame like you doing working in a sweatshop like this?"

"To be as tactful as possible about it, Joan, I don't think that dress is for you. In a job like yours, you don't want to look too young."

"Congratulations, Joan. As the first girl in this firm ever to win her 25-year pin, you have every right to be proud of yourself."

"Sorry Miss, but we don't serve unescorted ladies at the bar. Would you care to sit at a table?"

"Let's all go dutch."

"Yes, I admit you deserve the promotion, but you know how some of the men feel. They don't want to work for a woman."

"Don't tell me you can cook, too? I thought all career girls were helpless in the kitchen."

"We're giving a shower for Rosemary. She's getting married to the head of her department next month."

"I do believe it's your first gray hair, Miss. Shall I tint it or pluck it for you as a souvenir?"

"I don't care whether she can type or not — she's still not my type."

"...And, of course, after you've been with us for 40 years, you're entitled to the full pension."

"I love my wife, but oh, you kid!"

"I'll handle this problem myself, Joan. I feel it needs a man's touch."

"For Pete's sake, why should a career gal expect to get the same pay as a man? He's got a family to support. All she usually has to support is a pet cat or a couple of goldfish."

"They ape everything we do. The next thing you know they'll start carrying brief cases to and from the office."

"Hey, Joan. It's my wife's birthday. Would you mind trotting out and buying a couple dozen roses for her? While you're at it, pick one out for yourself. I'll pay for it."

"They're all just marking time until they can catch themselves a husband."

"Gee, Joan, sometimes I forget you're a gal. I guess I tend to think of you as just another one of the fellows."

The turbas were Castro-Maoist creations. They had a set wage scale for vandalism and blasts at Americans and democratic unions.

The turbas were paid $50 for burning an American flag. For $150, the Castro-Peking cells got a street riot. For $350, U.S. property was destroyed.

Some of the turba squads were hoods. Others were avowed Communist students in the university which had not been functioning for months because the young Communists on campus simply began shooting at their opponents in school elections. Still others were trained Communist cadres.

They burned Ambassador Martin's auto. They invaded his children's school with a stone-throwing mob bent on terrorizing the youngsters. The U.S. Embassy was raucously picketed.

During all this the democratic labor movement, operating in a small midtown building, attempted to follow its own free course. But always they were besieged by the political hoods.

Had the unions stood alone, they would have been crushed. President Bosch's special aide knew this. He knew about the funneling of CIA money.

Why should it not have been? Why should these unions have been crushed in the Castro-Maoist pincers?

These are but two little lands of a score in which the terror rode high. Terror even stalked the big Latin nations, especially in the newspaper field's unions there. In one such country, the journalists' union was dominated by a chap who had fought alongside Fidel Castro in the mountains.

Why should we not have fought back? There are many of us who have no drive for self-destruction.

CIA merely evened the score. What was wrong with that?

Richard Fussell Directing Play, 'All The Way Home'

By Barbara Lacy

Ask him how you direct a play and Richard Fussell is slightly embarrassed.

"I'm not experienced," he says, "This is only my second play."

But, the 26 - year - old director, and instructor in industrial arts with the manpower development act project, is experienced in the general art of theater.

In his two years in Little Theater he's made his way to the board of directors; acted in three plays, his last role was the lawyer in "Mary, Mary"; designed the sets for "The King and I", worked on the sets for every play, and directed "The Miracle Worker."

Perhaps it's because of this background that he takes such a broad view of directing. He wants to be in full control of the play, "just as the artist controls the paints he puts on his canvas."

Thus, for "All The Way Home" he researched and has the final say on the actor's interpretation of their roles.

To achieve the product he wants, he begins by setting the mood. He feels this helps the actors feel their parts just as it helps the audience catch the spirit of the play.

Since "All The Way Home," a Pulitzer Prize winning play, by Tad Mosel, adapted from the book "Death in the Family" by James Agee, is the story of a family's reaction to death, he felt the mood should be "solemn and simple."

"All the flats, or scenery are painted black," he said, describing the stage. "What color we will have, such as costumes, is subdued."

But the color scheme is not all that is unusual. There are four acting levels and seven acting areas.

"We had to completely redesign the stage," Fussell explained. He adjusted his glasses, took another chair and continued. "The drawing that came with the play wouldn't fit our stage. We didn't try to be different; we just worked with what we had.

"Now, a lot of the action takes place right in front of the audience, on the same level as the audience. Also, since we redesigned the stage most of the entrances are made from the back of the auditorium. The actors come in through the audience.

"This is about as close as you can get to theater in the round.

"The play actually has no plot. It is just a study in emotion; it is the things that happen when a crisis faces different people. It's very emotional, very gripping."

Again, Fussell wants to be in control. While he doesn't tell the actors how to play their parts, he hopes they can be in agreement. He explained how this works:

"It takes about six weeks to put a play together, after the cast is chosen.

"First, we have two readings. It's just like it sounds. We sit down and read the play aloud to get the feel of it. We don't care about interpretation now.

"Next you begin working with different scenes -- we block the play. This means we learn where to stand when, how far across stage to walk, when to sit, when to turn.

"We added quite a bit of action because of the long speeches. Actually, we changed all of the stage movements, I guess.

"It's after all this, learning the lines and blocking them that we go for interpretation. By this time you really understand the play.

"If the actors don't have the interpretation I think they should, we discuss the play and their part together. Then I hope we can come to a mutual understanding.

"Finally, we work on timing. This is quite a problem when you have entrances through the audience. You have to know just how fast to walk to reach the stage in time for your line. That's why we have a couples of practices with no breaks whatever. If something goes wrong we go right on . It's the only way to learn.

Fussell was quiet. He seemed to be thinking, "One more dress rehearsal, then the show."

"Women are easiest to direct," he added thoughtfully.

"Does this include your wife," we asked. Mary Fussell is making her debut as Sally, one of the leading roles.

"Definitely," he said.

March Coming In Like Lamb for Food Shopper

By SALLY RYAN
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—March is coming in like a lamb for the family food shopper.

A food price war is brewing in Portland, Ore.

In Oklahoma City, Okla., markets have cut egg and milk prices to keep up with the gas stations. That's right, gas stations.

In New York, a major supermarket chain cut milk prices.

And coffee wholesalers have cut their prices for the second time in six months.

In Portland, cutup fryers are advertised at 27 cents a pound, bacon 48 and sirloin steak 86, butter 58 and coffee 58 to 62.

One chain quietly cut prices on the shelves two weeks ago, and the others responded, advertising discount prices.

Some gas stations began selling milk and eggs in Oklahoma City, last month, exploding a milk price war that saw milk drop from $1.05 to 49 cents a gallon. It now is 84 to 89 cents. Eggs, which were 57 to 62 cents a dozen, are 49.

Wholesale milk prices have eased in many areas in recent weeks. This week a major chain in the New York area trimmed retail prices from 2 quarts for 55 cents to 27 cents apiece, 95 cents a gallon instead of 97.

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co, which operates the A& P supermarkets--the nation's largest chain - provided a break for coffee drinkers, too. It cut retail prices in the New York area on regular coffee 4 to 6 cents a pound -- instant coffee wasn't affected.

Coffee wholesalers responded by cutting their brands 2 to 4 cents. The reason: There's an awful lot of coffee in Brazil.

In the meat department, the spodlight is lingering on pork. Supplies are much bigger than a year ago. Ham and bacon prices are lower on the West Coast this week.

Broilers are down 1 cent a pound in the Southwest.

Lamb is down 1 to 2 cents a pound on the West Coast, and a major supermarket chain in the New York area is having a lamb sale. Leg of lamb is down 20 cents to 65 cents a pound.

PEACE MUST BE EARNED

--"The concept of victory without pain, prosperity without work, luxury without effort, something for nothing, is unrealistic," says Rep. John Dowdy (D-Tex.) "The thought is wonderful," he continues, "but is an illusion -- an adolescent dream. The America we know -- and want -- and love -- does not, cannot, and will not live on unreality. There seems to be a growing awareness of this fact; perhaps it has been revealed by the war and the progressively increasing inflation and cost of living."

Students Will Discuss Classics

The Great Books Foundation is making possible a new program for junior high school English students.

The program is based on the idea that young people, as well as adults, can help each other learn by reading and discussing the best books that have been written during the past 2,000 years.

The foundation believes the program will add to the students' formal education and will be the basis for continuing self-education.

At 7 p.m. Thursday eighth grade students will meet at the public library with Mr. and Mrs. Handy Moore and Mrs. David Croom to organize the first Great Books discussion group. Seventh grade students will meet one week from Thursday night at the same time and place.

This is not a class but a discussion group. The only teachers will be the books. There will be two trained coleaders to guide each meeting towards an appreciation of the classics selected.

There will be no fees. However each person will be required to read thoroughly each classic discussed and to purchase a set of six books. Participants can retain the books.

There being no further business the meeting was adjourned for the study session.

The session was concluded with prayer by Mrs. Grant.

"What I dislike about the Administration's urban legislation," explains Rep. Paul Fino (R-N.Y.) "specifically the 'Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966' is that it is nothing but a vehicle of federal control. It sets up no new programs, but merely ties old ones together into a vehicle for control aimed at imposing federal social standards on our cities."

Her headpiece was of nylon tulle held in place with a ringlet of sweetheart roses in a matching shade of blue. She wore matching slippers, and carried a small beaded bag. Her corsage was white sweetheart roses.

PEACE MUST BE EARNED

--"The concept of victory without pain, prosperity without work, luxury without effort, something for nothing, is unrealistic," says Rep. John Dowdy (D-Tex.) "The thought is wonderful," he continues, "but is an illusion -- an adolescent dream. The America we know -- and want -- and love -- does not, cannot, and will not live on unreality. There seems to be a growing awareness of this fact; perhaps it has been revealed by the war and the progressively increasing inflation and cost of living."

Students Will Discuss Classics

The Great Books Foundation is making possible a new program for junior high school English students.

The program is based on the idea that young people, as well as adults, can help each other learn by reading and discussing the best books that have been written during the past 2,000 years.

The foundation believes the program will add to the students' formal education and will be the basis for continuing self-education.

At 7 p.m. Thursday eighth grade students will meet at the public library with Mr. and Mrs. Handy Moore and Mrs. David Croom to organize the first Great Books discussion group. Seventh grade students will meet one week from Thursday night at the same time and place.

This is not a class but a discussion group. The only teachers will be the books. There will be two trained coleaders to guide each meeting towards an appreciation of the classics selected.

There will be no fees. However each person will be required to read thoroughly each classic discussed and to purchase a set of six books. Participants can retain the books.

There being no further business the meeting was adjourned for the study session.

Mrs. Sherman Grant was in charge of the study session, "Involvement in Evangelism." Through the use of a flip chart the session was carried on by Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Rudy Chittenden, Mrs. David Mulchay, Mrs. Beaird, Mrs. Herschel Deal, and the pastor, Dr. Robert E. Lively. The session was concluded with prayer by Mrs. Grant.

"What I dislike about the Administration's urban legislation," explains Rep. Paul Fino (R-N.Y.) "specifically the 'Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966' is that it is nothing but a vehicle of federal control. It sets up no new programs, but merely ties old ones together into a vehicle for control aimed at imposing federal social standards on our cities."

PB Predictions

Tonight is judgment night at Poplar Bluff in the class L regional basketball tournament. . . . . .

Semi-final round action opens at 7 p.m. when Charleston battles Sikeston for the right to meet the winner of the bottom bracket for the tournament title and the right to advance to state play.

The 8:30 p.m. game will find Poplar Bluff and Kennett fighting for the bottom bracket championship.

No upsets have been scored but it could happen tonight.

Charleston was seeded first and Poplar Bluff, Kennett and Sikeston was seeded behind Charleston in that order.

The winner of the tournament finals Friday night will advance to the first round game against the Herculaneum regional winner, which will most likely be undefeated De-Soto. The game will be played at Southeast Missouri State college in Cape Girardeau Monday.

As far as predictions are....

Charleston vs. Sikeston --- Charleston can look forward to the finals. . . .The Bulldogs will put up a gallant fight. . . . but. . . .will fall in the last seconds if Larry Briggs is in the game. . . .You know. . . .He is one of those shooters who wins the games as the horn sounds from 35 feet out. . . .If Limbaugh, Barnett and Townes take up the scoring slack of Carter and Wiss, who will most likely be guarded closely . . . .May the best team win. . . . We think it will be Charleston. Charleston 67, Sikeston 63.

Poplar Bluff vs. Kennett --- This will be the first tournament upset. . . .but maybe not the first. . . .Watch out for the Indians. . . .Poplar Bluff will fall. . . .and Charleston's next. Kennett 72, Poplar Bluff 66.

You know. . .."Basketball is unpredictable. . . .especially in high school circles". . . .we've known that all along. . . .but it's been a awful lot of fun. . . . predicting.

Here it is. . . .

Charleston vs. Sikeston --- The Bulldogs by at least three. . .

Maybe their right. . . .Little Devil says it will be the other way. . . .We will just wait and see. . . .

Tourney Spot Open

Here is an invitation...to any school in Southeast Missouri....from Coach Lucian Black of Bernie to enter your school in Bernie's invitation basketball tournament for the coming season.....

Pups End

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Sikeston's junior high basketball squad ended its season with a victory Saturday night and took third place in the Cape junior high four - team invitational tournament. The Bullpups of Coach Murray Sullivan beat Jackson 53-33.

Leading the way in the victory was Charlie Dye with 14 points followed by Throop and Lawrence with eight points each.

Dan Cartwright was the big rebounder for Coach Sullivan's quintet. He pulled nine.

Their final record, 9-5, was somewhat of a surprise considering the start the Pups got. . .

Charleston won the tournament by beating Cape junior high.

1966—Year Of Upsets?

If anybody claims that 1966 was the year of upsets in college football, he would be incorrect.

Probably no year in recent college football history had fewer upsets in conference play than did 1966.

A quick check of some of the conferences across the country show that there were just 39 upsets in conference competition. The most amazing statistic is that there were just two upsets in the Southeastern Conference; Georgia over Florida and Mississippi over Tennessee.

An upset occurs when a team favored by more than an extra point loses.

In the Ivy League, there were four upsets; Harvard over Dartmouth; Princeton over Harvard; Columbia over Penn; and Penn over Brown.

In the Big Ten, there were just six upsets; Illinois over Michigan; Indiana over Northwestern; Minnesota over Ohio State; Northwestern over Illinois; Wisconsin over Minnesota; and Iowa over Indiana.

In the Atlantic Coast Conference, there were eight upsets; Clemson over Maryland; Duke over Maryland; North Carolina State over Duke; North Carolina State over Clemson; South Carolina over North Carolina State; Virginia over Maryland; Wake Forest over South Carolina.

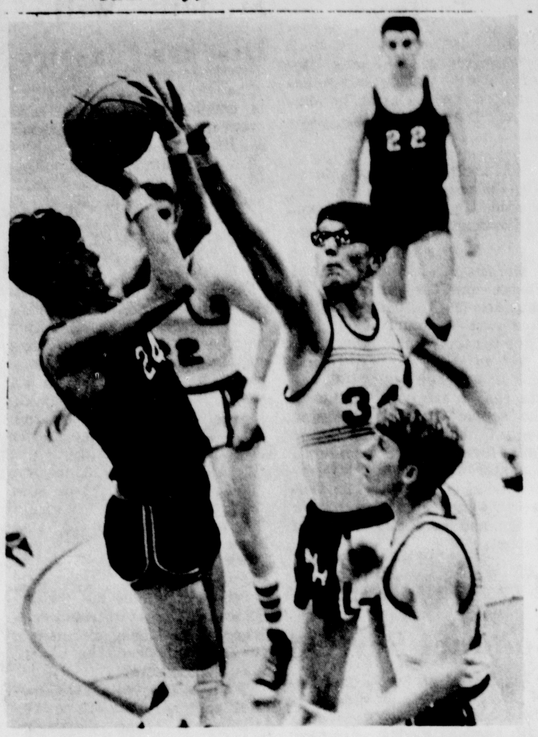

The Big Eight had just four upsets; Missouri over Oklahoma; Oklahoma over Nebraska; Oklahoma State over Colorado; and Oklahoma State over Oklahoma.

In the Southwest Conference, there were seven upsets; Baylor over Arkansas; SMU over Texas; TCU over Baylor; Texas Tech over Rice; Texas Tech over Arkansas; Texas A-M over Texas Tech; and Texas A-M over Baylor.

In the AAWU, there were eight upsets; California over Washington State; California over Washington; Oregon over Stanford; Oregon State over Washington over Stanford; and Washington over UCLA.

For the entire season, probably the most unpredictable team was Washington. In six of Washington's ten games, the underdog won.

Swing Along With Ted by Ted Williams

TANKING A FEW CUFFS

NEW YORK -- I'm glad to see that Red Ruffing finally got into the Hall of Fame. Obviously, some reforms are in the making on the selection of the choices and the method of voting. There are some fine players of the past who have never made it and one wonders why some of these great old stars were left out. There's been much controversy raised this year over the "Ruffing Incident," to coin a name. Most of the writers are serious about their selections but no one is infallible and when some writers choose Billy Martin or Jim Hegan as Hall of Famers, they're not being fair to everyone else.

No one is knocking the choice of Jim or Billy but the players who have done their best over the long period of years are the ones who qualify. It's the same with the choice of the Most Valuable Player. You're voted in on your accomplishments on the field and not whether you're Mister Nice Guy off the field or Mister Scrapper on the field. I'm sure I was not voted into the Hall of Fame because the writers had a great affection for me.

However, I am hopeful that all the outcries and storm that were raised this year over the voting procedure will be ironed out at the Baseball Writers Association's next meeting. There certainly should be serious consideration as to why a player like "Goose" Goslin is not eligible for the Hall of Fame and somebody else who pitched one no - hitter is suddenly eligible.

For those who are not familiar with Leon "Goose" Goslin, look at these figures. He played from 1921 through 1938 as an outfielder with the Senators, Browns & Tigers. His lifetime batting average was .316. In 1928 he had the American League with .379 and in other years hit .324, .344, .335, .354, .327, 328. Those are pretty good batting statistics. He hit over .300 for eleven years. He ranks 9th in Runs-Batted - In in baseball history. He hit almost 250 homers. His credentials are pretty impressive yet he's not even considered for the Hall of Fame.

And if names like Clint Courtney, Jim Hegan and Ted Lepcio are on the list, then something must be done to keep the tradition and the importance of the Hall of Fame on the original level that was intended.

Again, please understand I am not knocking or putting down these players but the facts speak for themselves. The Hall of Fame is not a popularity contest for either the "nice" guy or the "tough" scrapper. It's what they've earned by their own sweat and effort over the period of years.

And though someone may question whether Goslin's lifetime batting average of .316 means anything, I'll give you a baseball question. How many players today, currently still active, have a lifetime batting average of over .300? And I'm not talking about the player who hits over .300 for one year. I'm talking about their lifetime averages to - date. Count them. You're lucky to get half a dozen. Again, congrats to Red Ruffing. My very first major league hit was off Red.

Scott Central-Hayti North Fall In Second Half

Notre Dame To State

By Staff Writer

CAPE GIRARDEAU --- Scott County Central and Hayti North fell short on their bids for state basketball tournament semi-final round berths last night as they lost in quarter final round play at Houck field house last night.

An eight-point third period was the downfall of the Braves from Scott Central as New Haven poured in 18 points. They dropped a 60-56 decision to New Haven.

Hayti North led for three periods before falling in the finals to the highly favored Notre Dame Bulldogs, 64-59.

Scott Central hit only 32.4 per cent from the field while New Haven connected on 51.2 per cent of its field goal shots to give the Shamrocks from New Haven a chance at the title, its first since 1959.

New Haven, which has taken the title four straight years will play its first game of the state tournament finals Friday at 2 p.m. at Wentworth Military Academy in Lexington.

Scott Central out-rebounded the New Haven quintet, who had a three inch height advantage over the Braves most of the game, but taxed in the fina half. Central pulled 44 rebounds while New Haven pullec 31.

Steve Miles opened the scoring for Central with a free throw with 7:06 remaining in the first period and after that each team exchanged the lead until the final seconds of the game, when New Haven's Walter Scheer hit a jumper for a 15-13 lead.

As the second period opened the Shamrocks raced to a seven-point lead only to have it cut to two points on three quick fast break baskets by Central and a couple of free throws.

Terry Bell hit a 20-foot jumper midway in the period that tied the score at 23-23 and Central went on from there to notch a 31-25 lead at intermission.

Central dominated the rebounding in the last four minutes of the second period as it ran up its lead.

New Haven scored the first three points of the third period, and then tied the score 32-32 after Central dropped a free throw in the basket with 5:06 remaining in the period.

Owens hit a free throw for the Braves but New Haven put together two quick baskets after each squad exchanged baskets for a 43-39 lead at the end of three.

New Haven's rebounding the second half was the determining factor in its win as in the first half they were getting only one shot but in the second they were pulling the rebounds and tipping shots back in to stay out front.

As the final period opened the tension was high and Central's Randy Taylor, who stole the ball, missed a wide open layin and the Shamrocks began slowing down the pace of the game.

Steve Miles, who had been a big rebounder for the Braves in the first half, entered the fourth period after setting out most of the third. He then quickly left the game due to his fifth foul. The New Haven quintet held a 45-43 lead but had not been dominating the rebounding as it did after his departure.

Rebound after rebound, score after score, the New Haven quintet shot into a 57-47 led with 2:35 remaining in the final period.

The Braves seemed headed for a humiliating defeat after leading in the first half, but a full court press and ball steals enabled the Braves to close to 58-56 lead with three seconds remaining.

The Braves hopes ended on a last second shot that fell short.

Scott Central placed three players in double figures, John Lee with 16, Gary Owens with 15, and Terry Bell's 14 were the Braves leading scorers.

Gary Gerling topped the Shamrocks victory march with 18 points, Ronald Lutz followed with 13, Richard Bruce added 11 and Walter Scheer pumped in 10.

Notre Dame jumped to a 2-0 lead in the opening minute of its game against Hayti North but trailed after that until the quarter when it surged ahead for a 64-59 win.

Ben Watkins' outcourt shooting in the first half sent the Indians to an 11-6 lead midway through the first period but Notre Dame closed to 19-14 at the end of the first on the shooting of Greg Flaker.

Hayti North, after holding a 22-20 lead early in the second period, shot into a 33-22 lead with a little better than two minutes remaining. It seemed to be on the way to Lexington after holding a 35-29 lead at intermission but the roof fell in the second half.

Hayti, which hit 50 per cent of its field goal shots in the first half, was led by Ben Watkins and Ben Johnson, who hit on six of 13 field goal attempts for 46 per cent and five of six for 83 per cent respectively but had a bad shooting percentage in the second half.

As the third period opened the Bulldogs notched the first three buckets for a 35-33 lead, but Hayti managed to hold onto the lead until with 4:56 remaining Notre Dame notched the lead on Tim Bucek's driving layin after a steal for a 54-53 lead.

After Notre Dame notched the lead, both squads exchanged baskets until Notre Dame hit the Indians with a zone press that rattled them. Notre Dame was off to victory as Hayti had eight turnovers in the last four minutes of play.

Hayti passed up numerous shots in the final two minutes as the Notre Dame defense kept the Indians offense pushed out court, not allowing it to penetrate the ball in toward the basket.

Larry Job blocked two shots and hit a basket with 11 seconds left after Greg Flaker blew a layin as the score was 61-59.

The game ended as Job pumped in a free throw with two seconds remaining on the clock. Hayti's final shot fell short.

Hayti's Ben Johnson retained his hot shooting in the second half as he finished the game with 29 points and high game honors. Ben Watkins, who had 14 points at intermission, hit only five in the second for 19 points.

Dave Halter was the Bulldogs' big gun, netting 22 points, most coming in the final period as Hayti switched to a man-to man defense that Halter shot through for point after point.

Greg Flaker added 17 for Notre Dame while Job led the rebounding department with 15. Notre Dame took a 47-28 rebounding advantage against the Indians.

Southern Illinois Headed Toward NIT With No.1 Rating

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Southern Illinois, over its toughest late - season hurdle on the way toward New York's National Invitation Tournament, maintained an apparently insurmountable lead in The Associated Press' small - college basketball poll today.

PB Predictions

Tonight is judgment night at Poplar Bluff in the class L regional basketball tournament. . . . . .

Semi-final round action opens at 7 p.m. when Charleston battles Sikeston for the right to meet the winner of the bottom bracket for the tournament title and the right to advance to state play.

The 8:30 p.m. game will find Poplar Bluff and Kennett fighting for the bottom bracket championship.

No upsets have been scored but it could happen tonight.

Charleston was seeded first and Poplar Bluff, Kennett and Sikeston was seeded behind Charleston in that order.

The winner of the tournament finals Friday night will advance to the first round game against the Herculaneum regional winner, which will most likely be undefeated DeSoto. The game will be played at Southeast Missouri State college in Cape Girardeau Monday.

As far as predictions are. . . .

Charleston vs. Sikeston --- Charleston can look forward to the finals. . . .The Bulldogs will put up a gallant fight. . . but. . . .will fall in the last seconds if Larry Briggs is in the game. . . .You know. . . .He is one of those shooters who wins the games as the horn sounds from 35 feet out. . . .If Limbaugh, Barnett and Townes take up the scoring slack of Carter and Wiss, who will most likely be guarded closely . . . .May the best team win. . . . We think it will be Charleston. Charleston 67, Sikeston 63.

Poplar Bluff vs. Kennett --- This will be the first tournament upset. . . .but maybe not the first. . . .Watch out for the Indians. . . .Poplar Bluff will fall. . . .and Charleston's next. Kennett 72, Poplar Bluff 66.

You know. . .."Basketball is unpredictable. . . .especially in high school circles". . . .we've known that all along. . . .but it's been a awful lot of fun. . . . predicting.

Workers at the Gulf fertilizer chemical plant gave us their prediction today on the Charleston - Sikeston game at Poplar Bluff tonight.

Here it is. . . .

Charleston vs. Sikeston --- The Bulldogs by at least three. . .

Maybe their right. . . .Little Devil says it will be the other way. . . .We will just wait and see. . . .

Tourney Spot Open

Here is an invitation...to any school in Southeast Missouri....from Coach Lucian Black of Bernie to enter your school in Bernie's invitation basketball tournament for the coming season.....

The tournament will be an eight-team affair and opens play the week after Thanksgiving.

Pups End

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Sikeston's junior high basketball squad ended its season with a victory Saturday night and took third place in the Cape junior high four - team invitational tournament. The Bullpups of Coach Murray Sullivan beat Jackson 53-33.

Leading the way in the victory was Charlie Dye with 14 points followed by Throop and Lawrence with eight points each.

Dan Cartwright was the big rebounder for Coach Sullivan's quintet. He pulled nine.

Their final record, 9-5, was somewhat of a surprise considering the start the Pups got. . .

Charleston won the tournament by beating Cape junior high.

1966—Year Of Upsets?

If anybody claims that 1966 was the year of upsets in college football, he would be incorrect.

Probably no year in recent college football history had fewer upsets in conference play than did 1966.

A quick check of some of the conferences across the country show that there were just 39 upsets in conference competition. The most amazing statistic is that there were just two upsets in the Southeastern Conference; Georgia over Florida and Mississippi over Tennessee.

An upset occurs when a team favored by more than an extra point loses.

In the Ivy League, there were four upsets; Harvard over Dartmouth; Princeton over Harvard; Columbia over Penn; and Penn over Brown.

In the Big Ten, there were just six upsets; Illinois over Michigan; Indiana over Northwestern; Minnesota over Ohio State; Northwestern over Illinois; Wisconsin over Minnesota; and Iowa over Indiana.

In the Atlantic Coast Conference, there were eight upsets; Clemson over Maryland; Duke over Maryland; North Carolina State over Duke; North Carolina State over Clemson; South Carolina over North Carolina State; Virginia over Maryland; Wake Forest over South Carolina.

The Big Eight had just four upsets; Missouri over Oklahoma; Oklahoma over Nebraska; Oklahoma State over Colorado; and Oklahoma State over Oklahoma.

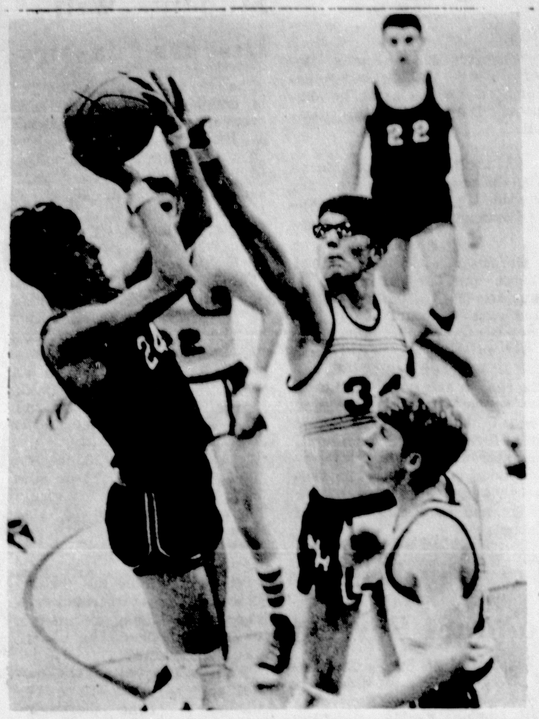

In the Southwest Conference, there were seven upsets; Baylor over Arkansas; SMU over Texas; TCU over Baylor; Texas Tech over Rice; Texas Tech over Arkansas; Texas A-M over Texas Tech; and Texas A-M over Baylor.

In the AAWU, there were eight upsets; California over Washington State; California over Washington; Oregon over Stanford; Oregon State over Washington over Stanford; and Washington over UCLA.

For the entire season, probably the most unpredictable team was Washington. In six of Washington's ten games, the underdog won.

Swing Along With Ted by Ted Williams

TANKING A FEW CUFFS

NEW YORK -- I'm glad to see that Red Ruffing finally got into the Hall of Fame. Obviously, some reforms are in the making on the selection of the choices and the method of voting. There are some fine players of the past who have never made it and one wonders why some of these great old stars were left out. There's been much controversy raised this year over the "Ruffing Incident," to coin a name. Most of the writers are serious about their selections but no one is infallible and when some writers choose Billy Martin or Jim Hegan as Hall of Famers, they're not being fair to everyone else.

No one is knocking the choice of Jim or Billy but the players who have done their best over the long period of years are the ones who qualify. It's the same with the choice of the Most Valuable Player. You're voted in on your accomplishments on the field and not whether you're Mister Nice Guy off the field or Mister Scrapper on the field. I'm sure I was not voted into the Hall of Fame because the writers had a great affection for me.

However, I am hopeful that all the outcries and storm that were raised this year over the voting procedure will be ironed out at the Baseball Writers Association's next meeting. There certainly should be serious consideration as to why a player like "Goose" Goslin is not eligible for the Hall of Fame and somebody else who pitched one no - hitter is suddenly eligible.

For those who are not familiar with Leon "Goose" Goslin, look at these figures. He played from 1921 through 1938 as an outfielder with the Senators, Browns & Tigers. His lifetime batting average was .316. In 1928 he had the American League with .379 and in other years hit .324, .344, .335, .354, .327, 328. Those are pretty good batting statistics. He hit over .300 for eleven years. He ranks 9th in Runs-Batted - In in baseball history. He hit almost 250 homers. His credentials are pretty impressive yet he's not even considered for the Hall of Fame.

And if names like Clint Courtney, Jim Hegan and Ted Lepcio are on the list, then something must be done to keep the tradition and the importance of the Hall of Fame on the original level that was intended.

Again, please understand I am not knocking or putting down these players but the facts speak for themselves. The Hall of Fame is not a popularity contest for either the "nice" guy or the "tough" scrapper. It's what they've earned by their own sweat and effort over the period of years.

And though someone may question whether Goslin's lifetime batting average of .316 means anything, I'll give you a baseball question. How many players today, currently still active, have a lifetime batting average of over .300? And I'm not talking about the player who hits over .300 for one year. I'm talking about their lifetime averages to - date. Count them. You're lucky to get half a dozen. Again, congrats to Red Ruffing. My very first major league hit was off Red.

Scott Central-Hayti North Fall In Second Half

Notre Dame To State

By Staff Writer

CAPE GIRARDEAU --- Scott County Central and Hayti North fell short on their bids for state basketball tournament semi-final round berths last night as they lost in quarter final round play at Houck field house last night.

An eight-point third period was the downfall of the Braves from Scott Central as New Haven poured in 18 points. They dropped a 60-56 decision to New Haven.

Hayti North led for three periods before falling in the finals to the highly favored Notre Dame Bulldogs, 64-59.

Scott Central hit only 32.4 per cent from the field while New Haven connected on 51.2 per cent of its field goal shots to give the Shamrocks from New Haven a chance at the title, its first since 1959.

New Haven, which has taken the title four straight years will play its first game of the state tournament finals Friday at 2 p.m. at Wentworth Military Academy in Lexington.

Scott Central out-rebounded the New Haven quintet, who had a three inch height advantage over the Braves most of the game, but taxed in the fina half. Central pulled 44 rebounds while New Haven pullec 31.

Steve Miles opened the scoring for Central with a free throw with 7:06 remaining in the first period and after that each team exchanged the lead until the final seconds of the game, when New Haven's Walter Scheer hit a jumper for a 15-13 lead.

As the second period opened the Shamrocks raced to a seven-point lead only to have it cut to two points on three quick fast break baskets by Central and a couple of free throws.

Terry Bell hit a 20-foot jumper midway in the period that tied the score at 23-23 and Central went on from there to notch a 31-25 lead at intermission.

Central dominated the rebounding in the last four minutes of the second period as it ran up its lead.

New Haven scored the first three points of the third period, and then tied the score 32-32 after Central dropped a free throw in the basket with 5:06 remaining in the period.

Owens hit a free throw for the Braves but New Haven put together two quick baskets after each squad exchanged baskets for a 43-39 lead at the end of three.

New Haven's rebounding the second half was the determining factor in its win as in the first half they were getting only one shot but in the second they were pulling the rebounds and tipping shots back in to stay out front.

As the final period opened the tension was high and Central's Randy Taylor, who stole the ball, missed a wide open layin and the Shamrocks began slowing down the pace of the game.

Steve Miles, who had been a big rebounder for the Braves in the first half, entered the fourth period after setting out most of the third. He then quickly left the game due to his fifth foul. The New Haven quintet held a 45-43 lead but had not been dominating the rebounding as it did after his departure.

Rebound after rebound, score after score, the New Haven quintet shot into a 57-47 led with 2:35 remaining in the final period.

The Braves seemed headed for a humiliating defeat after leading in the first half, but a full court press and ball steals enabled the Braves to close to 58-56 lead with three seconds remaining.

The Braves hopes ended on a last second shot that fell short.

Scott Central placed three players in double figures, John Lee with 16, Gary Owens with 15, and Terry Bell's 14 were the Braves leading scorers.

Gary Gerling topped the Shamrocks victory march with 18 points, Ronald Lutz followed with 13, Richard Bruce added 11 and Walter Scheer pumped in 10.

Notre Dame jumped to a 2-0 lead in the opening minute of its game against Hayti North but trailed after that until the quarter when it surged ahead for a 64-59 win.

Ben Watkins' outcourt shooting in the first half sent the Indians to an 11-6 lead midway through the first period but Notre Dame closed to 19-14 at the end of the first on the shooting of Greg Flaker.

Hayti North, after holding a 22-20 lead early in the second period, shot into a 33-22 lead with a little better than two minutes remaining. It seemed to be on the way to Lexington after holding a 35-29 lead at intermission but the roof fell in the second half.

Hayti, which hit 50 per cent of its field goal shots in the first half, was led by Ben Watkins and Ben Johnson, who hit on six of 13 field goal attempts for 46 per cent and five of six for 83 per cent respectively but had a bad shooting percentage in the second half.

As the third period opened the Bulldogs notched the first three buckets for a 35-33 lead, but Hayti managed to hold onto the lead until with 4:56 remaining Notre Dame notched the lead on Tim Bucek's driving layin after a steal for a 54-53 lead.

After Notre Dame notched the lead, both squads exchanged baskets until Notre Dame hit the Indians with a zone press that rattled them. Notre Dame was off to victory as Hayti had eight turnovers in the last four minutes of play.

Hayti passed up numerous shots in the final two minutes as the Notre Dame defense kept the Indians offense pushed out court, not allowing it to penetrate the ball in toward the basket.

Larry Job blocked two shots and hit a basket with 11 seconds left after Greg Flaker blew a layin as the score was 61-59.

The game ended as Job pumped in a free throw with two seconds remaining on the clock. Hayti's final shot fell short.

Hayti's Ben Johnson retained his hot shooting in the second half as he finished the game with 29 points and high game honors. Ben Watkins, who had 14 points at intermission, hit only five in the second for 19 points.

Dave Halter was the Bulldogs' big gun, netting 22 points, most coming in the final period as Hayti switched to a man-to man defense that Halter shot through for point after point.

Greg Flaker added 17 for Notre Dame while Job led the rebounding department with 15. Notre Dame took a 47-28 rebounding advantage against the Indians.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

Next Tuesday, March 7, is our day of decision in regard to the continuation of school improvement in this community. Voters will have the opportunity to vote for the bond issue which will enable the Board to provide the buildings which are necessary for better education.

Buildings to be financed by the bond issue, and the $200,000 of federal funds which will be made available to the schools for vocational building improvement, will include: 1. a new elementary school to replace Airport; 2. enlargement of the Senior High School library; 3. two additional classrooms for the Math-Science Department; 4. nine classrooms and shops for expansion of vocational education, and 5. a field house at Senior High for school and community use.

As a bond issue voted eight years ago is being retired this year, the tax levy required to pay principal and interest on that issue can be applied to the new issue and there will be no increase in the tax rate.

Polling places will be at: Airport School; Lee Hunter School; Lincoln School; Matthews School; Middle School; Miner City Hall and Southwest School. Voters do not have to be registered. The polls will be open from 6:00 A.M. to 7:00 P.M. Voters may cast their ballots at any one of the polling places. We urge that all do so. Our girls and boys, and the adults whom we serve, will have better educational opportunities as a result of this program. As good schools make better communities, all of us will benefit.

Two representatives of the Office of Equal Educational Opportunities, the section of the U.S. Office of Education concerned with integration, visited in our schools last week. They studied the progress which the board has made thus far in integrating the schools and the boards plan to comply with Civil Rights legislation in the future. They were informed that the best interests of the children would likely be served if the continued integration of Lincoln School would be accomplished over a two year period rather than during the next school year. While integration is not based on the availability of buildings, the building program which is planned would make continued integration more effective and educationally sound. Consequently the complete integration of Lincoln School will not be accomplished next fall. Also to make the change easier, the board will not move the sixth or ninth grades as has been outlined. This reorganization for better education will be made in the future, whether or not additional buildings are provided but here also the new buildings will make this grouping of students more educationally effective.

One of the Cantons of Switzerland believes so strongly that society needs educated people that it has voted to pay all regularly enrolled students to go to school. The only exception are foreigners and those who have flunked out and must repeat. Students will receive about $70.00 a month plus allowances for books and supplies and in fields as medicine and physics may receive up to $140.00 monthly. High school students even get in on the "study for pay" and for the last two years will receive a $45.00 monthly allowance.

Ralph Fadum, Dean of the School of Engineering of North Carolina State University and also chairman of the U.S. Army Scientific Advisory Panel, and an Advisor to the Department of Defense, U.S. Bureau of Public Roads and the Ford Division, says that the nation must sharply increase its number of graduating engineers. Otherwise, Fadum says, that the nations technology will lag.

According to Dean Fadum, we were graduating more engineers a decade and a half ago than we are today. Seventeen years ago, 48,160 engineering degrees were granted. Last year, only 35,000 were graduated.

Our society, geared to science and technology, needs ever increasing numbers of engineers and those graduating has not kept pace with the need. In contrast, Mr. Fadum said, the Soviet Union has stepped up the training of engineering and technological students to a marked degree and their total number of engineering graduates will exceed 100,000 per year.

Employment opportunities in engineering and technology are, of course, excellent and the beginning pay scale is, at least currently, above most other occupations.

James Conant, former Harvard University President, whose study of the nations high schools, ten years ago drastically affected education, says that poor school financing is continuing to keep many youth from an adequate education.

Mr. Conant says that Congress should return to the states a part of federal income tax funds to be spent on the public schools. He further urged that in order to equalize educational opportunity in the many states, that the responsibility for paying for public education should be shifted from local communities to the states. He is most concerned about the serious inequalities which remain in education, largely as a result of the differences in abilities of school districts to pay for education.

Mr. Conant said that although there had been a marked improvement in the teaching of foreign languages, mathematics and the natural sciences, but there was still little evidence that all students who were intellectually qualified to take such work enrolled in it.

He recommended that a comprehensive school should, as a minimum, meet the following standards:

1. Provide instruction in calculus
2. Provide instruction in a modern language for four years
3. Arrange the schedule so that a student may study in any one year: mathematics, science, a foreign language, social studies, physical education, art or music.
4. Provide one or more advance placement courses, that is; courses of college level content for able students.
5. Afford a pupil load of fewer than 120 for each English teacher.

Conant also recommended a broad offering of vocational education for the good high school.

He is critical of the highly conservative attitude of American educational leadership about the use of modern technology in instruction. He found that actually few schools use the many mechanical or technical devices which can individualize and improve teaching.

We doubt that anyone has yet devised a completely satisfactory method for the "grading" of one person by another. The worth of the system depends on who does the grading and what standards the individual uses.

Where a group of students are being judged over a period of time in different subjects, and by different teachers, each with varying standards, the end result is bound to be uncertain, even at its best.

We known the system that we use has many limitations. We try to make it as effective as it or any method can be.

At the lower levels, the elementary grades, we believe that the best measure of whether or not the student is doing satisfactory work is how he performed in relation to his own ability to do superior work. To not do so, we think this is unsatisfactory for that individual. Others may not have so much ability, but do the best of which they are capable. For that individual his performance must be regarded as satisfactory -- for him. As the student progresses through the school, we try to group him as nearly as possible with students of similar ability and more attention is given to his progress in relation to the group, as well as to his ability.

The system is competitive at all levels. The student is competing with himself, which is the best competition, and later on with a group of students of similar abilities.

The fact still remains that our measure of the students progress is still made by several different teachers each with somewhat different standards, although we hold frequent meetings in order to make the system as uniform as possible. Our point in these remarks is that exact numerical or letter grades are not always a good measure of what the student is learning and that sometimes, we are inclined to compare one of our children with another or with a neighbor's child and this simply cannot be done unless the student takes the same course, the same test, under the same teacher.

Another point is that the real important thing about education is what the student learns that will help him to function effectively in the society in which he will live. This cannot always be measured by grades.

The first thing I do, after having asked in a few words the Lord's blessing upon his precious Word, is to begin to meditate on the Word of God, searching as it were into every verse to get blessing out of it . . . for the sake of obtaining food for my soul.

Almost invariably I have found the result to be that after a very few minutes my soul has been led to confession, or to thanksgiving, or to intercession, or to supplication; so that, though I did not, as it were, give myself to prayer but to meditation, it had turned almost immediately more or less into prayer . . . .

Thus also the Lord is pleased to communicate unto me that which, either very soon after or at a later time, I have found to become food for other believers.

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

Next Tuesday, March 7, is our day of decision in regard to the continuation of school improvement in this community. Voters will have the opportunity to vote for the bond issue which will enable the Board to provide the buildings which are necessary for better education.

Buildings to be financed by the bond issue, and the $200,000 of federal funds which will be made available to the schools for vocational building improvement, will include: 1. a new elementary school to replace Airport; 2. enlargement of the Senior High School library; 3. two additional classrooms for the Math-Science Department; 4. nine classrooms and shops for expansion of vocational education, and 5. a field house at Senior High for school and community use.

As a bond issue voted eight years ago is being retired this year, the tax levy required to pay principal and interest on that issue can be applied to the new issue and there will be no increase in the tax rate.

Polling places will be at: Airport School; Lee Hunter School; Lincoln School; Matthews School; Middle School; Miner City Hall and Southwest School. Voters do not have to be registered. The polls will be open from 6:00 A.M. to 7:00 P.M. Voters may cast their ballots at any one of the polling places. We urge that all do so. Our girls and boys, and the adults whom we serve, will have better educational opportunities as a result of this program. As good schools make better communities, all of us will benefit.

Two representatives of the Office of Equal Educational Opportunities, the section of the U.S. Office of Education concerned with integration, visited in our schools last week. They studied the progress which the board has made thus far in integrating the schools and the boards plan to comply with Civil Rights legislation in the future. They were informed that the best interests of the children would likely be served if the continued integration of Lincoln School would be accomplished over a two year period rather than during the next school year. While integration is not based on the availability of buildings, the building program which is planned would make continued integration more effective and educationally sound. Consequently the complete integration of Lincoln School will not be accomplished next fall. Also to make the change easier, the board will not move the sixth or ninth grades as has been outlined. This reorganization for better education will be made in the future, whether or not additional buildings are provided but here also the new buildings will make this grouping of students more educationally effective.

One of the Cantons of Switzerland believes so strongly that society needs educated people that it has voted to pay all regularly enrolled students to go to school. The only exception are foreigners and those who have flunked out and must repeat. Students will receive about $70.00 a month plus allowances for books and supplies and in fields as medicine and physics may receive up to $140.00 monthly. High school students even get in on the "study for pay" and for the last two years will receive a $45.00 monthly allowance.

Ralph Fadum, Dean of the School of Engineering of North Carolina State University and also chairman of the U.S. Army Scientific Advisory Panel, and an Advisor to the Department of Defense, U.S. Bureau of Public Roads and the Ford Division, says that the nation must sharply increase its number of graduating engineers. Otherwise, Fadum says, that the nations technology will lag.

According to Dean Fadum, we were graduating more engineers a decade and a half ago than we are today. Seventeen years ago, 48,160 engineering degrees were granted. Last year, only 35,000 were graduated.

Our society, geared to science and technology, needs ever increasing numbers of engineers and those graduating has not kept pace with the need. In contrast, Mr. Fadum said, the Soviet Union has stepped up the training of engineering and technological students to a marked degree and their total number of engineering graduates will exceed 100,000 per year.

Employment opportunities in engineering and technology are, of course, excellent and the beginning pay scale is, at least currently, above most other occupations.

James Conant, former Harvard University President, whose study of the nations high schools, ten years ago drastically affected education, says that poor school financing is continuing to keep many youth from an adequate education.

Mr. Conant says that Congress should return to the states a part of federal income tax funds to be spent on the public schools. He further urged that in order to equalize educational opportunity in the many states, that the responsibility for paying for public education should be shifted from local communities to the states. He is most concerned about the serious inequalities which remain in education, largely as a result of the differences in abilities of school districts to pay for education.

Mr. Conant said that although there had been a marked improvement in the teaching of foreign languages, mathematics and the natural sciences, but there was still little evidence that all students who were intellectually qualified to take such work enrolled in it.

He recommended that a comprehensive school should, as a minimum, meet the following standards:

1. Provide instruction in calculus
2. Provide instruction in a modern language for four years
3. Arrange the schedule so that a student may study in any one year: mathematics, science, a foreign language, social studies, physical education, art or music.
4. Provide one or more advance placement courses, that is; courses of college level content for able students.
5. Afford a pupil load of fewer than 120 for each English teacher.

Conant also recommended a broad offering of vocational education for the good high school.

HOME-GROWN WINTER SALADS

Salad greens in a week is what you get when you grow cress which comes pre-planted in a handy kit. Just add water.

One crop that anyone can grow, even a person with a thumb far from green, is cress for use in winter salads. Variously called "salad cress," "upland cress" or "pepper grass," this tangy green may be mixed with others in a salad bowl or chopped and added to cheese or butter in sandwiches or canapes.

Salad cress grows so quickly that it is ready to be eaten a week after planting! Sounds unbelievable but it's true.

Kits are available in your local stores already planted with salad cress, with nutrients already added to the growing medium, so that you need only add water and place the plastic tray in a sunny window.

Follow directions for watering as printed in the folder included in the kit. No other care is necessary.

Growth is so rapid and harvest time comes in such a few days that even a tiny youngster will enjoy growing salad cress.

The unverse is change; our life is what our thoughts make it.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend who has lost 20 pounds and looks terrific. I asked her how she did it and she confided that she went to a hypnotist who sold her on the idea that certain foods such as candy, pie, cake, bread and potatoes are poisonous to her.

I am about 15 pounds overweight and I would just love to get myself down to a size 10 again. Do you recommend hypnotism? My husband is afraid of it but I say if it works, why not?

Your word is law in our house and my husband has agreed that what you say goes. Please say yes. --- HIPPY HELEN JANE

Dear Hip: Hypnosis has helped some people lose weight but in the vast majority of cases it was a temporary loss. The sound and sensible approach is to see your physician, stick to his diet and vow to change your eating habits permanently.

Dear Ann Landers: I am one of those so-called rude people who gets mad when someone dials the wrong number. Sometimes I become unladylike and I am not ashamed to admit it. Ocassionally I swear, like last night.

Three times I was awakened out of a sound sleep. The last call was 3:30 A.M. Some drunk was looking for Ida. I tried to be patient. I asked him what number he was trying to reach. The number was not even remotely similar to ours. I asked him to please check with information. Then he got nasty --- said he was the one who was losing dimes and what was I so snippy about.

You said, Ann Landers, that people don't have one set of manners for daily use and another set for the telephone. Well, I disagree. Normally I'm a very gracious person but under the circumstances I had a right to be rude. Agree? --- NOT SORRY

Dear Not Sorry: Your reaction was a human one and while I am not condoning profanity I can certainly understand a short fuse at 3:00 a.m.

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it that when men go out and get stiff everyone is concerned about the poor suffering wife? Does anyone ever stop and think WHY he does this? Well, I can tell you. --- 99 times out of 100 it's on account of HER.

I have provided my wife with a mortgage-free home. She has every electric appliance invented in the last 50 years. We have a new car, (paid for), and her clothes take up all of her closet and half of mine.

Yet she nags me from morning till night, calls me stupid, says her sisters' husbands treat them better than I treat her. The latest is that my eating habits make her sick to her stomach. It was the main topic of conversation at the dinner table last night --- and right in front of the children.

Unfortunately I can't drink because it makes me ill. But I sure do understand why some men go out and get drunk. I wish I could. --- ABUSED

Dear Ab: Your marriage is in rocky enough shape without adding booze to the picture, my friend. You two need counseling. Check with your clergyman and the Family Service Association. Your marriage is on a collision course and you need outside help desperately.

What is love? How does it differ from sexual attraction? Read "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

HOME-GROWN WINTER SALADS

Salad greens in a week is what you get when you grow cress which comes pre-planted in a handy kit. Just add water.

One crop that anyone can grow, even a person with a thumb far from green, is cress for use in winter salads. Variously called "salad cress," "upland cress" or "pepper grass," this tangy green may be mixed with others in a salad bowl or chopped and added to cheese or butter in sandwiches or canapes.

Salad cress grows so quickly that it is ready to be eaten a week after planting! Sounds unbelievable but it's true.

Kits are available in your local stores already planted with salad cress, with nutrients already added to the growing medium, so that you need only add water and place the plastic tray in a sunny window.

Follow directions for watering as printed in the folder included in the kit. No other care is necessary.

Growth is so rapid and harvest time comes in such a few days that even a tiny youngster will enjoy growing salad cress.

The unverse is change; our life is what our thoughts make it.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I have a friend who has lost 20 pounds and looks terrific. I asked her how she did it and she confided that she went to a hypnotist who sold her on the idea that certain foods such as candy, pie, cake, bread and potatoes are poisonous to her.

I am about 15 pounds overweight and I would just love to get myself down to a size 10 again. Do you recommend hypnotism? My husband is afraid of it but I say if it works, why not?

Your word is law in our house and my husband has agreed that what you say goes. Please say yes. --- HIPPY HELEN JANE

Dear Hip: Hypnosis has helped some people lose weight but in the vast majority of cases it was a temporary loss. The sound and sensible approach is to see your physician, stick to his diet and vow to change your eating habits permanently.

Dear Ann Landers: I am one of those so-called rude people who gets mad when someone dials the wrong number. Sometimes I become unladylike and I am not ashamed to admit it. Ocassionally I swear, like last night.

Three times I was awakened out of a sound sleep. The last call was 3:30 A.M. Some drunk was looking for Ida. I tried to be patient. I asked him what number he was trying to reach. The number was not even remotely similar to ours. I asked him to please check with information. Then he got nasty --- said he was the one who was losing dimes and what was I so snippy about.

You said, Ann Landers, that people don't have one set of manners for daily use and another set for the telephone. Well, I disagree. Normally I'm a very gracious person but under the circumstances I had a right to be rude. Agree? --- NOT SORRY

Dear Not Sorry: Your reaction was a human one and while I am not condoning profanity I can certainly understand a short fuse at 3:00 a.m.

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it that when men go out and get stiff everyone is concerned about the poor suffering wife? Does anyone ever stop and think WHY he does this? Well, I can tell you. --- 99 times out of 100 it's on account of HER.

I have provided my wife with a mortgage-free home. She has every electric appliance invented in the last 50 years. We have a new car, (paid for), and her clothes take up all of her closet and half of mine.

Yet she nags me from morning till night, calls me stupid, says her sisters' husbands treat them better than I treat her. The latest is that my eating habits make her sick to her stomach. It was the main topic of conversation at the dinner table last night --- and right in front of the children.

Unfortunately I can't drink because it makes me ill. But I sure do understand why some men go out and get drunk. I wish I could. --- ABUSED

Dear Ab: Your marriage is in rocky enough shape without adding booze to the picture, my friend. You two need counseling. Check with your clergyman and the Family Service Association. Your marriage is on a collision course and you need outside help desperately.

What is love? How does it differ from sexual attraction? Read "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference," by Ann Landers. Send 35¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE DECREPIT VICTIM

If Homer knew he was driving to an accident, he might not have been going so fast. As it was, however, he was late for a date and had outdistanced caution when he crashed into Mr. Hardy's vintage, but highly polished, automobile.

Climbing out of the wreck, Mr. Hardy spit out several uncomplimentary epithets and then three teeth. Instead of suing Homer for the loss of his three teeth, however, he sued him for the cost of a full set of dentures.

"Since my teeth were in such poor condition," Mr. Hardy explained to the judge, "my dentist didn't think a partial set of teeth would be wise or practical."

"It's not my fault Mr. Hardy had teeth like an old saw," was Homer's answer. "Since all I knocked out were three teeth, that's all I should have to pay for."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make Homer pay for a whole new set of false teeth?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! The Judge held that a wrong-doer must take his victim as he finds him; that he is responsible for all the natural consequences of his wrong even though they may be made more serious because his victim is a physical wreck.

MORNING MEDITATION

Each morning at daybreak, before I arise
Amid authentic silence continuation. . . .
To shining cosmic rays, I close wakeful eyes
In fervent prayer and supplication.
Then I feel as though God is not far aloof
With stillness in depth, nearly as long. . .
For my heart thrills anew, this joyous proof
In the throbbing pulse beat of song.

Now I ponder the prevailing hesitation.
From life's strait pathway to trod. . . .
In divine reverence and anticipation
I sense, the glorious presence of God.
Thereupon this summit I would linger still,
Yet I yield majestic pleasure, to obey His will.

Today in History
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, March 2, the 61st day of 1967. There are 304 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1836, Texas adopted a declaration of independence at a special convention at Washington-on-the Brazos. Later in the same month a republican constitution was adopted and the following year the independence of the Republic of Texas was recognized by the United States, Great Britain, France and Belgium.

On this date:

In 1776, American Marines first engaged in battle when a force of 268 marines captured Ft. Montague, New Providence, in the Bahamas.

In 1853, the Washington Territory was organized.

In 1861, Dakota was organized as a territory.

In 1945, American forces reached the Rhine River in Germany.

In 1949, "Lucky Lady", a B50 bomber, made the first nonstop around-the-world flight in history.

Ten years ago — President Dwight D. Eisenhower nominated Charles Evans Whittaker to be an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Five years ago — President John F. Kennedy announced the United States would begin a series of nuclear tests in the atmosphere over the Pacific in late April.

One year ago — The United States said a hydrogen bomb was lost in a B52 accident over Spain, triggering a massive search effort. Washington also disclosed conventional explosives in two other H-bombs aboard the bomber spewed radioactive material over a small area of land and that a fourth bomb was found intact.

Today In U.S. History

Today in History
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, March 2, the 61st day of 1967. There are 304 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1836, Texas adopted a declaration of independence at a special convention at Washington-on-the Brazos. Later in the same month a republican constitution was adopted and the following year the independence of the Republic of Texas was recognized by the United States, Great Britain, France and Belgium.

On this date:

In 1776, American Marines first engaged in battle when a force of 268 marines captured Ft. Montague, New Providence, in the Bahamas.

In 1853, the Washington Territory was organized.

In 1861, Dakota was organized as a territory.

In 1945, American forces reached the Rhine River in Germany.

In 1949, "Lucky Lady", a B50 bomber, made the first nonstop around-the-world flight in history.

Ten years ago — President Dwight D. Eisenhower nominated Charles Evans Whittaker to be an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Five years ago — President John F. Kennedy announced the United States would begin a series of nuclear tests in the atmosphere over the Pacific in late April.

One year ago — The United States said a hydrogen bomb was lost in a B52 accident over Spain, triggering a massive search effort. Washington also disclosed conventional explosives in two other H-bombs aboard the bomber spewed radioactive material over a small area of land and that a fourth bomb was found intact.

Ironically, the report of the committee — and even the actual resolution passed by the House — appeared likely to become weapons for Powell to use in any court challenge to the House action.

Although the House voted to exclude Powell, it also adopted the committee's finding that "Adam Clayton Powell possesses the requisite qualifications of age, citizenship and inhabitancy for membership in the House of Representatives and holds a certificate of election from the state of New York."

Through a parliamentary quirk, this part was adopted after the House had approved the exclusion. Asked if action had been completed on this section, one member nodded yes and then remarked: "I don't know how well it matches the rest of it."

Celler, 78, said he thinks the action could be challenged on two constitutional grounds: First, that the House in effect wrote new constitutional qualifications for membership, and second, that the action was approved by a majority rather than by two-thirds of the members.

Expulsion of a member must be by a two-thirds vote, but exclusion before the member is sworn in is by a majority vote. "This was expulsion by a majority," Celler said.

As for the special election, a spokesman for New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said one must be called within 30 to 40 days after the governor receives official notice of the House action. New York City officials made it clear that Powell could run and be elected without ever setting foot in New York, where he is under an arrest order in connection with the libel judgment.

Powell was asked last weekend in Bimini what he would do if the House failed to seat him. He said he would run and win, adding "even if I'm dead, as long as they keep me propped up, I will be elected."

Curtis predicted that if Powell is elected and seeks his seat "he'll get the same thing again."

Speaker John W. McCormack asked during the debate whether the exclusion still would apply if Powell is again elected during the course of the 90th Congress, said that question would have to be decided when it arises.

Floyd McKissick, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, called Powell's expulsion "a slap in the face to every black man in this country." He said the issue goes beyond Powell "to the subject of representative government, which black people in Harlem have been denied."

The action was termed "shocking" by Whitney M. Young Jr., national director of the Urban League. He said it "denies the basic right of his (Powell's) constituents to representation of their own choosing."

These sentiments were echoed by other civil rights leaders, including A. Philip Randolph, vice president of the AFL-CIO Executive Council.

One Negro leader in Harlem — James Lawson, president of the 300-member United African Nationalist Movement — said "every black man should get a book of matches and adopt the slogan of Watts — 'burn, baby, burn.'" acquaintance with Senator Goldwater while serving in the Pentagon. The two became close friends.

Goldwater made it clear when first asked several months ago that he would like to take part in the ceremony. While still in the senate he took part in the ceremonies at which England Air Force Base near Alexandria, La., was named in honor of the Missouri hero.

The former Arizona senator has pointed out that the dedication will not be a political occasion. He retires this spring as a brigadier general in the air force reserve.

The memorial to be dedicated in the park includes a jet trainer provided by the air force and a stone that is yet to be selected.

and December of 1963."

"We have the evidence and we can assume what their conclusions are," Clark said.

"On the evidence that the FBI has, there was no connection found" between Shaw and the assassination of the president in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, Clark said.

"He was checked out and found clear? "Clark was asked.

"That's right," Clark replied.

Both the FBI and the Justice Department had previously refused to discuss the arrest of Shaw.

Shaw's arrest was the first in Garrison's assassination probe.

"There will be more arrests, a considerable number of them," said Garrison, who has been conducting a probe of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy for the past five months.

Shaw, 54, a decorated Army major in World War II, was released on $10,000 bond after his arrest Wednesday night. His luxurious French Quarter home was searched for nearly three hours by Garrison's agents.

The dozen men who made the search carried away five cardboard boxes filled with various items, including books and a gun in a canvas case — a rifle or shotgun.

Shaw is ruggedly handsome and silver-haired. He brushed past newsmen without a word when he was released from central lockup after being booked, fingerprinted and mugged.

He was arrested in Garrison's office, where he had appeared for questioning, in response to subpoena.

Garrison has vowed to prove that a conspiracy conceived in New Orleans "culminated in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy" in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

His claim contradicts the official report of the Warren Commission, which said Lee Harvey Oswald, a former New Orleans resident, shot the president.

Celler, 78, said he thinks the action could be challenged on two constitutional grounds: First, that the House in effect wrote new constitutional qualifications for membership, and second, that the action was approved by a majority rather than by two-thirds of the members.

Expulsion of a member must be by a two-thirds vote, but exclusion before the member is sworn in is by a majority vote. "This was expulsion by a majority," Celler said.

As for the special election, a spokesman for New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said one must be called within 30 to 40 days after the governor receives official notice of the House action. New York City officials made it clear that Powell could run and be elected without ever setting foot in New York, where he is under an arrest order in connection with the libel judgment.

Powell was asked last weekend in Bimini what he would do if the House failed to seat him. He said he would run and win, adding "even if I'm dead, as long as they keep me propped up, I will be elected."

Curtis predicted that if Powell is elected and seeks his seat "he'll get the same thing again."

Speaker John W. McCormack asked during the debate whether the exclusion still would apply if Powell is again elected during the course of the 90th Congress, said that question would have to be decided when it arises.

Floyd McKissick, national director of the Congress of Racial Equality, called Powell's expulsion "a slap in the face to every black man in this country." He said the issue goes beyond Powell "to the subject of representative government, which black people in Harlem have been denied."

The action was termed "shocking" by Whitney M. Young Jr., national director of the Urban League. He said it "denies the basic right of his (Powell's) constituents to representation of their own choosing."

These sentiments were echoed by other civil rights leaders, including A. Philip Randolph, vice president of the AFL-CIO Executive Council.

One Negro leader in Harlem — James Lawson, president of the 300-member United African Nationalist Movement — said "every black man should get a book of matches and adopt the slogan of Watts — 'burn, baby, burn.'" acquaintance with Senator Goldwater while serving in the Pentagon. The two became close friends.

Goldwater made it clear when first asked several months ago that he would like to take part in the ceremony. While still in the senate he took part in the ceremonies at which England Air Force Base near Alexandria, La., was named in honor of the Missouri hero.

The former Arizona senator has pointed out that the dedication will not be a political occasion. He retires this spring as a brigadier general in the air force reserve.

The memorial to be dedicated in the park includes a jet trainer provided by the air force and a stone that is yet to be selected.

and December of 1963."

"We have the evidence and we can assume what their conclusions are," Clark said.

"On the evidence that the FBI has, there was no connection found" between Shaw and the assassination of the president in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, Clark said.

"He was checked out and found clear? "Clark was asked.

"That's right," Clark replied.

Both the FBI and the Justice Department had previously refused to discuss the arrest of Shaw.

Shaw's arrest was the first in Garrison's assassination probe.

"There will be more arrests, a considerable number of them," said Garrison, who has been conducting a probe of the assassination of President John F. Kennedy for the past five months.

Shaw, 54, a decorated Army major in World War II, was released on $10,000 bond after his arrest Wednesday night. His luxurious French Quarter home was searched for nearly three hours by Garrison's agents.

The dozen men who made the search carried away five cardboard boxes filled with various items, including books and a gun in a canvas case — a rifle or shotgun.

Shaw is ruggedly handsome and silver-haired. He brushed past newsmen without a word when he was released from central lockup after being booked, fingerprinted and mugged.

He was arrested in Garrison's office, where he had appeared for questioning, in response to subpoena.

Garrison has vowed to prove that a conspiracy conceived in New Orleans "culminated in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy" in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

His claim contradicts the official report of the Warren Commission, which said Lee Harvey Oswald, a former New Orleans resident, shot the president.
